FOREWORD

WITH more persons working fewer hours, it certainly behooves all of us in this interesting world to cultivate a hobby that will occupy our spare time and better us for following it. Since one of the cardinal objectives of education is the training for leisure, we know that at Libbey we have found in our daily work the inspiration for many days of fascinating enjoyment in the future, whether our hobby be gardening, sports, reading, travel, or people. As you turn the pages of this Edelian, now or in the future, may you review the sources from which much intelligent joy can constantly come and indulge in some recreational pursuit which may bring you both profit and pleasure.

CLINTON F. HOUSER

DEDICATION

Because of his untiring effort to keep the name of Libbey high in the annals of sports and because of his genial manner, his good sportsmanship and his unswerving loyalty to Libbey, the Senior Class of nineteen hundred thirty-five sincerely and affectionately dedicates this Edelian to one whom all know and admire, Mr. Clinton Franklin Houser, our head football coach.

Drawn by Frank Martin in Architectural Drawing.

The stairway leading to the splendid stadium of Libbey is both beautiful to look at and delightful to tread.

What a precious gift from the Creator is the power of remembering! When pain or sorrow or vexations trouble us, the memory of some moment fraught with delightful joy or beauty flashes across our minds, soothingly and gently, like the touch of a well loved hand, and we find ourselves suddenly strengthened, and alive with new hopes and dreams.

Nothing that is fine or noble, nothing that is truly kind, is ever forgotten, though, stifled at times by the forces of materialism, we are often fearful that it might be. We have been greatly saddened by the death of our friend and teacher, Paul Reading, but we feel that what he has left to us can never be lost. In turning the pages of the books he inspired us to love, we remember his ideas; in listening to discussions of the topics of world interest that so engrossed him, his words come to us, crisp and familiar, even though spoken by the tongue of another; in hearing the songs he loved, his own vibrant voice rings in our memories with a new and greater beauty. His humanity and his kindliness are a part of the traditions of Libbey.

MAGIC TOWERS

Windows blazoned with the lights of the setting sun, walls revealing in their sturdiness the force of withstanding great obstacles, doorways inviting ingress to a world unlimited in its fascinating resources! The mystery and charm of the unknown and the undiscovered hold as much romance today as they did in the olden times and our beautiful school buildings send forth, as did the castles of yore, youths trained for the encounters of life.

Drawn by Norman Sass in Architectural Drawing.

RALPH E. DUGDALE

OUR SUPERINTENDENT

It is with pride and pleasure that Libbey extends to Mr. Ralph E. Dugdale sincere wishes for the successful and happy continuance of his work as our chief administrator in education. Since his appointment a year ago, we have been inspired by a sense of security and a belief in the progressive advancement of the schools of Toledo, because Mr. Dugdale's varied services in offices held previously in our school system have proved his acumen, his kindliness, his fairness, and his leadership.

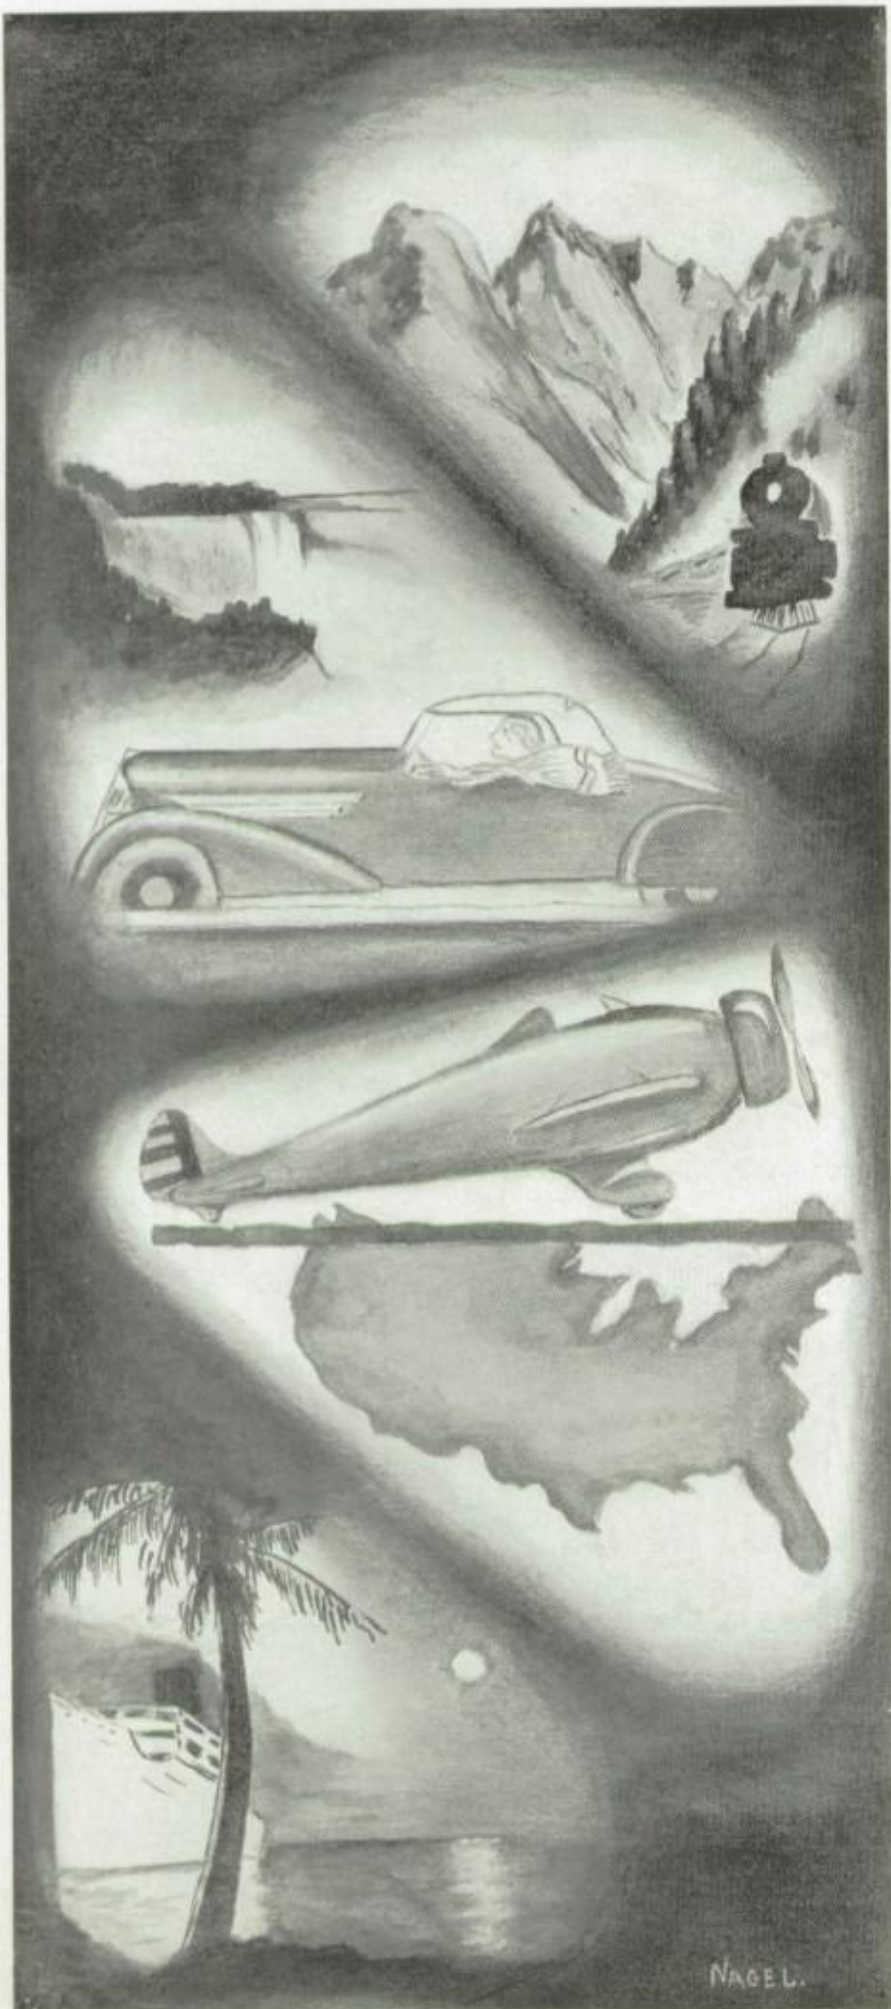

HAROLD E. WILLIAMS

OUR PRINCIPAL

In a changing world beset by problems so difficult as to defy solution almost, it is gratifying to be able to turn to one who has established for us at Libbey a tradition of steadfastness, loyalty, and kindness. By his interest in all phases of school activities, by his co-operation in community projects, by his wise understanding of boys and girls, and by his fine example of upright living, Mr. Williams is a constant standard of efficiency, integrity, and goodness.

FACULTY

a Junior in Architectural Drawing.

SHOW me the man who is tired of life and I shall suggest a hobby. If he likes solitude, there are books and music; if friends delight him, games and sports are fine. The nature lover may hike or drive to the haunts that interest him; the aesthete has the world of art to admire. With a position, some leisure time, a bit of cash, and a hobby, who would care to be a king?

OFFICE GIRLS

Miss Lillian Vye

Mrs. Doris Sullivan

Miss Helen Dorn

With gun drawn, the Brinks' man leaves the office, having collected the money, banked today by the club or class treasurers, from Mrs. Sullivan, the capable school treasurer. She not only handles the money, but every bill incurred by any school organization must pass through her hands before being paid. At her side labors Miss Vye, the book-sales clerk who so deftly handles all the ropes connected with the sales of new texts. To satisfy impatient students and to aid uncertain ones in the securing of the proper books are no easy tasks, but no one can complain of the services rendered by this clerk. Returning home from school some balmy spring day after spending stolen hours wandering far afield, you find a note has informed your parents of your "French leave," which clearly shows that Miss Dorn, attendance clerk, is no slacker. As for the eagerly-awaited announcements sent around second hours, they also are the products of her handiwork.

While busily serving Mr. Williams, teachers, students, and parents, these girls never fail to give a friendly smile or a word of greeting to all of us who make so many demands upon them.

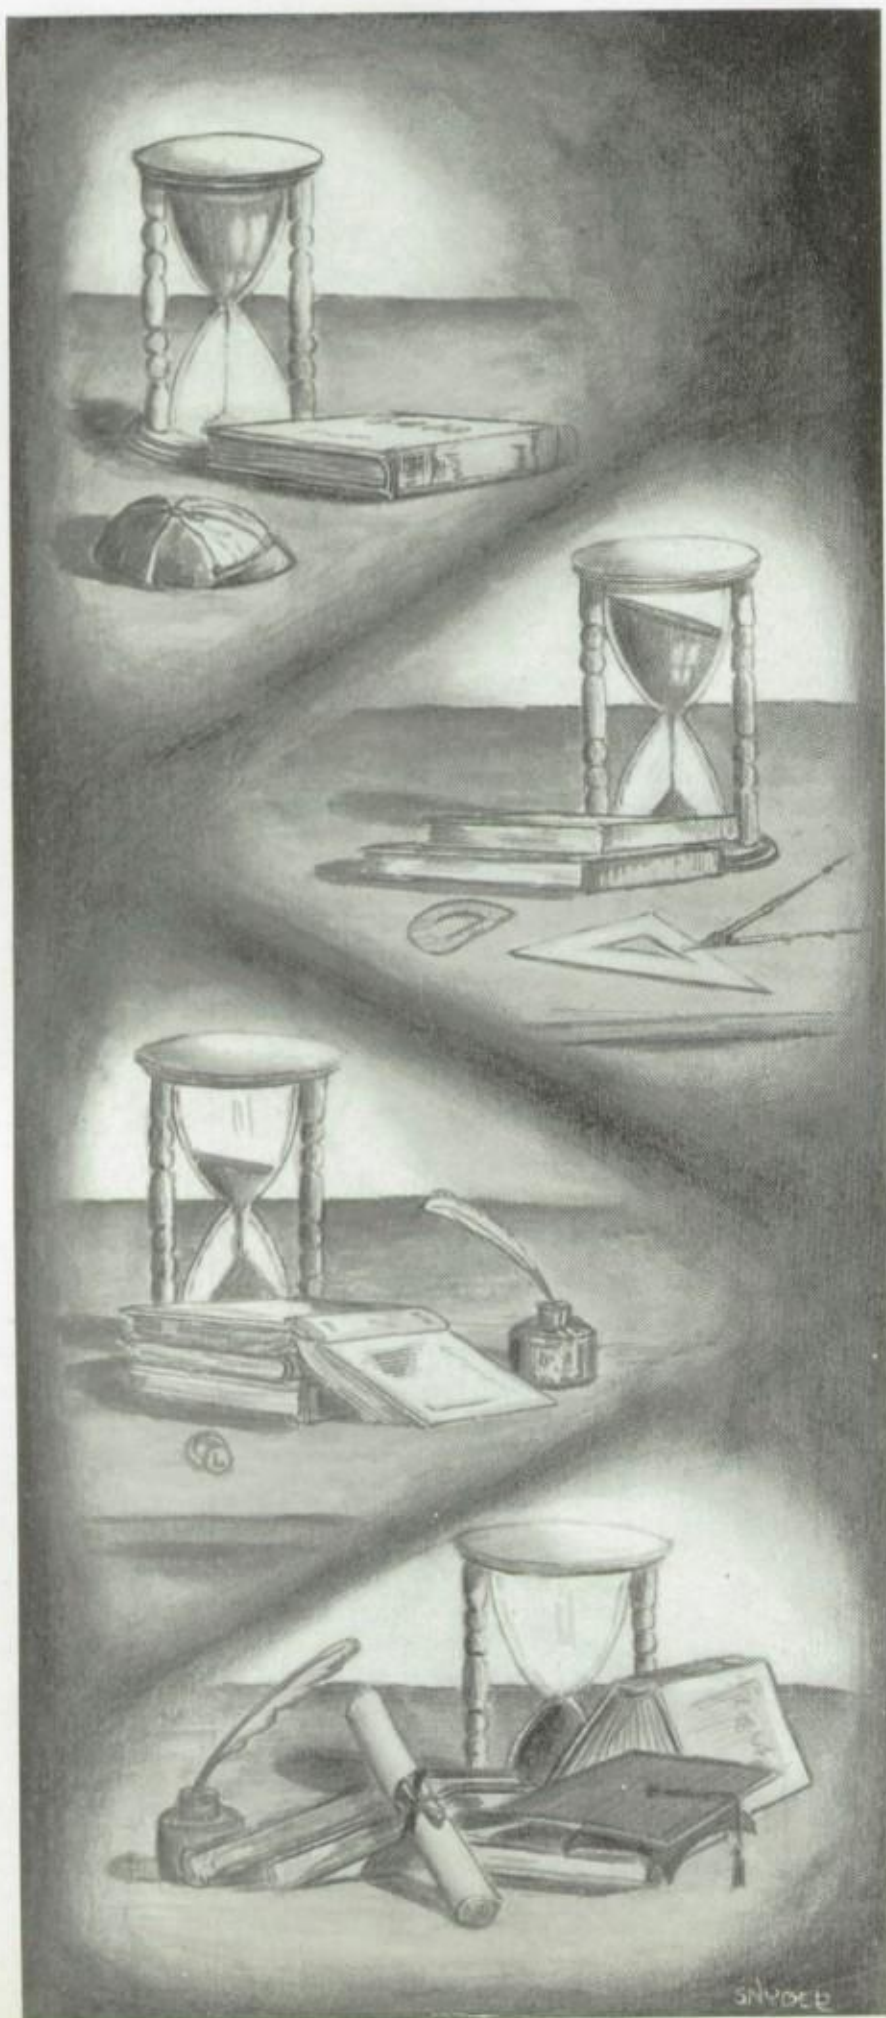

HOBBIES

Careful, Mr. Hunt! Mr. Smith is a pretty good Ike Walton himself!

Folks all over the world have hobbies. Teachers, being quite human in spite of what some students may think to the contrary, also have some special interest with which to occupy their leisure time. Miss Russell could relate many "ups and downs" of traveling to remote and quaint places, while Miss Payne and Mr. Dipman collaborate and expound the masculine and feminine ideas of photography. Soon, working in her garden, Mrs. Kontz will forget her trials, and her results will surely prove conclusively that she made no mistake in choosing a pastime. Mr. Vander doesn't go for anything quite so strenuous, but prefers to bury himself in a stamp album, or better still, investigate reports he's heard about some new stamp for sale. Another kind of collecting is done by Miss McGuire. She gathers up all the curious objects procurable, but Mr. Toepfer will bother with text books on bookkeeping only, that being his hobby as well as a part of his profession. Miss Brown turns to the "great out-of-doors" to recuperate, being especially interested in hiking and birds. Mrs. Rairdon and Mr. Boyle, seem to have turned the tables when she took up politics, and he, weaving rugs. This list of hobbies, if continued, would include everything from chewing gum to eating, but "'nuf said" for the present.

C L A S S E S

a Senior in Architectural Drawing.

THE sands of time flow steadily and swiftly. Those glorious high school days, full of carefree laughter and diligent study are drawing to a climax while we watch the last few grains sift silently through the narrow neck of the hour glass, becoming a part of yesterday. Let us make the most of the fleeting present, striving always to live up to the high standards set by our school.

PRESENTING

Parting words of advice.

Proms, banquets, Edelians, exams—the last few weeks of a Senior year engulf all in their giddy swirl, yet we take time out for a few moments of reflection before launching out upon our own in this bewildering world. Uncertain as it is, the challenge is now greater, and wisely we shall bestir ourselves into action. Remember with what gusto we campaigned for and elected our class officers? This same enthusiasm can be carried over into the political affairs in which we, as future voters, are soon to participate. Still, we wish one last word as Seniors, and that is of appreciation to our dean, Mr. Hunt, who has done so much to make our class a success. Taking leave of our beaming adviser, Mr. Hunt, the class officers, President Allan Britton, Secretary Jane Wilson, Vice-President Martha Lok, Treasurer Fred Drafts, and Sergeant-at-Arms Byron Gardner look forward with pleasure to the events which they have just planned.

Below, we find Linden Beebe working hard to earn enough money to take his friend to the Senior Prom, which is being planned by a committee headed by Richard Vanderhoof. His eager co-planners are Betty Radke, Betty Haskins, Byron Harris, Mollye Streight, and June Hankenhof.

And on the night of the much talked of Prom, Mary Kreft is seen putting on last minute touches.

As the Prom plans are laid, the boys earn and the girls get beautiful.

CLASS PROPHECY

Days, months, years had passed. In the year 1966, I decided to take a trip to see whether I might encounter some of the old gang of thirty-one years ago. Before leaving, much had to be done in preparation for my journey. This was not difficult with the aid of my quite capable private secretary and confidante, Frances Czolgosz. Finally, the day arrived when we were to leave. The cab which transported us to the station was recklessly driven by Gerald Anderson. Actually, we almost began to believe that he hadn't driven since his graduation. When we arrived at the Black and Black Railroad, (John and Leslie had finally compromised), Duane Aseltine slowly rushed forward for our bags, raving and reeling off with them like a drunken giant. Before boarding the train, a tragic explosion was heard. The station-house had been bombed. The scout car arrived promptly at the calling. Chief Richard Knopp reported that the notorious criminals, Herbert Arft, Willard Biggs, and James Benigni, were drastically at work again. However, their leader, Lloyd Tucker, escaped the police as usual. The reporters, of course, were there almost immediately. The head reporter of the "Cameron Daily," Janet Thom, stood both awed and amazed at the sight. Because of this, the "Zaph Times" reporter, Isabell Fye, beat her to the news. Poor Janet! Jean couldn't run a profitable newspaper business with her. For the first time in our life, we saw the two School chums quarrel and part. We couldn't stand much more, so we boarded the train with a heavy heart and proceeded towards our destination, San Francisco, the city of privately owned airplanes, the money-making scheme of Fred Bender.

While on the train, both Frances and I devoured all there was to offer, including some delicious fudge. Upon inquiring of the young man, Norman Baker, who sold it, we learned that it was made by the Heyman and Sprunk Candy Co. of America, Inc. They had received their formula through the patient endeavors of the great scientist, Alvin Scharer. After several transfers were made, we finally arrived in San Francisco. We learned from the information clerk, Gloria Baird, that the boat would leave for Japan at eight the following morning. We accordingly put up in the Broome, Broome, Broome & Broome Hotel for the night. Barney Gardner, bell-hop, gracefully stumbled with our bags in his earnest desire to aid us. Upon our short stay there, we met Margaret Hanline, hostess; Virginia Krabill, elevator-girl; and Marjorie Trempf, chief cook and bottle-washer. We sailed on schedule. The captain of the ship, Ralph Ringel, was a likeable and hospitable sort of chap. He graciously informed us that all of his men were at our command. Simultaneously, the deck hands, Harold Schroeder, Herbert Minnick, and Edward Laugerman, popped up from behind a conspicuous clump of barrels. Now we knew we were welcome. After having received assignments to our cabins from the purser, John Gennings, and after having met several of the people who were also sailing, we settled down for a pleasant trip. The first day, nothing much happened in the way of excitement. That night, not much sleep was attained. A terrific yowling and howling of a young child in the cabin next to us was very vexatious. Naturally, we intended to inquire in the morning as to whether or not such a thing could be avoided. We had intended to go about it diplomatically, but whatever our intentions were, they were not necessary. At approximately seven-thirty the following morning, (all was quiet next door, but not on deck), a scream was heard. We rushed out and to our amazement, the obstinate and spoiled child who had bothered us during the night had fallen overboard. This happened to be Ralph Jr., the only boy of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wiesenberg. But the child wasn't blond. Oh no, he had brown curls like his mother, the former Faylene Atwater. We wondered where this boy had obtained his meanness of throwing soap in the soup when Robert Killion, the cook, wasn't looking and we never did find out. For several days we bravely sailed the seas. The day before we were to land, a tiny speck was seen in the distance. According to the maps, land was not to be within seventy-five miles, as we were slightly off the charted course. What could this mean? Gradually a mysterious something loomed into sight and what a shock it was! Those who weren't on deck learned of its presence from the sickly scream, "Pirates!" Slowly the pirate ship crept upon us. The deadly Jolly Roger, waving somewhat victoriously above, prepared us for what was to come. Upon their boarding our ship, I recognized the leader, Dolly Kleinhans, who was followed by her unworthy and scrupulous pirates, Ellen Hansen, treasurer; Florence Moden, slicer; Mary Kreft, plank shover; and Virginia Lingle, flag-raiser. Most obvious was the fact that these young ladies needed no light to guide them. Everyone was alarmed, but there was no need for this, for when Dolly and her women recognized some of their old friends, including several of the cowering, cowardly, crouching sailors, Frank Toy, Elwin McHugh, and Bob Nagel, they were willing to leave us unmolested, providing—what was their provision? "Merely this!" exclaimed Dolly. "We'll leave under this one condition. We want ransom—Jack Ransome." Having been granted their wish, they left, very much to our relief.

Landing in Japan, we were quickly wafted away to the "Restum Grandee Swellee" Hotel. Upon the request of the manager, Gordon MacDonald, we signed the register and discovered that Dorothy Lester, Jane Lewis, Dorothy Gysin, and Eliza Love were also visiting in Japan. For what reason we never did find out. The next day we heard that Ray Loehrke and James Kruse had become "coolified." They introduced us to several other coolies who were creeping among the trees in "Enjoyum and Seeum" Park. These were none other than George McDowell, Ralph Mathias, and Herbert Engler. The poor kids! They had to earn a living somehow. The young man whom we encountered singing at the top of his voice, proved to be Clifford Miller, park tender and tenor. His assistant, who "shooed" away the then popularly known vulgar tramp invaders, Norman Lindhorst and Leland Lewis, was Leonard Mathias. The next place to which our coolie transported us was the isolated reform school, "Makum Better—Maybe." This reformatory held many notables. The superintendent, Frank Martin, with his mean and burly traits, tried to reform those who had fallen by the wayside. Among these were Robert Horn, Robert Hubaker, and Ralph Jamison. Foolishly enough, Wayne Jimison and Charles Jirinec, not realizing what a poor example the others had set, unaimingly followed their friends and had just escaped being sent across the road. After we had attended an uninteresting baseball game, the "Babe Ruth" being Bill Speas, and Lester Kelsey being chief "ump," water boy, and bench-warmer, we left Japan for Russia.

Several of the Russian peasants, Lucille Krauss, Mildred Kurrasch, Mary Larkin, and Betty Manthey, entertained us with an old-fashioned folk dance. Some of the other guests besides ourselves were Albert Kelley, who at present was going under the assumed name of Napoleon the Second, Teddy Kelsey or the great Mussolini of '66, and Gordon Klein, the Hitler of yesterday, today, and forever. The leader of the Communistic Party, Fred Brill, and his desperate followers, Charles Schneider, Charles Kapela, Edward Schmakel, and John Saxton, were creating quite an uproar until the Russian Peace Council, Leland Kellerman, Robert Klippstein, and Harold Klein, came to the aid of the helpless people of whom they had taken advantage. After having eaten our fill at the "Eatum and Likum" Sausage Shop, a partnership concern run by Lillian and Eleanore Miller, we took a plane from Russia to Switzerland, the next country on our list.

While flying above the Alps, we saw beneath us several ski-jumpers, Virginia McLaughlin, Mary Merkle, Antonia Marschall, and Lucille Mock, and also the ace ski-jumper Martha Lok, who was doing a back "spill." Landing safely, we met the yodeling hobo, Pat Densman and his sly, spry, and shy wife, Betty Haskins. While attending a guitar concert, we met the star guitarist, Virginia Honberger; the elbow tap dancer, Lucille Herold; and a group of comedians, John Young, Dick Hilton, and Dick Vanderhoof. By the time we had reached Germany, we were practically famished and stopped at the "Kaffee Klutch and More Klutch" for a few refreshments. The owner of the establishment, was Byron Harris, with his willing and capable waitresses, Noreen Gray, Margaret Greene, Carolyn Gomer, and Charlotte Gomer, and their standing customers and patrons, Bernice Henold, Hazel Heinlein, and others who aided in his success. Although we were here only a short time, we met many famous people including the builder of the non-wreckable dirigible, John Glanzman; a duke, Evan Price; and several duchesses: Vivian Zander, Bettie Riddle, and Earlene Baker. One afternoon as we were walking down Schnizelburg Avenue, a rumbling and thundering in the distance caused us to pause. The circus had come to town. Everyone turned out for the event. Mary White and her husband, Fred Wolkins, were worn out after dragging their ten children around. They had insisted on seeing Marguerite Selter, the lady with horns, and the sextuplets, Venice Wagner, Rita Reinlein, Wanda Schmidt, Jeanette Perkey, June Hankenhof, and Marion Hersch. We were quite disappointed at the service extended at the German stores. Antique bologna was sold us by Charles Fox at the "Moo Cow Moo" Butcher Shop. Practically all of our clothing was ruined at the "Wir Thun Es Recht" Laundry which was headed by Melvin DeForest. Those who jumped at the snap of his fingers and at the wave of his lofty hand were Thomas Otteson, chief soaker; Ralph Oldiges, head wringer; and Phil Crocker, main scrubber.

The next morning we took a flying leap to France and arrived just in the nick of time. Upon reading an extra, we learned that Charles Robb had been fined ten cents for hoarding. As we plodded along, we decided to visit a French School, the L'Ecole Bastille. The principal, Naomi Timmons, invited us to feel it our privilege to "look around." The head of the Personality Development Department, Dorothea Thiem, didn't recognize us, for she seemed inclined to day-dream. The excuse she offered was that she was busy rearranging her prejudices. The co-heads of the three R's Department were Margaret Miller and Isabelle Husted. Betty Martin was in charge of the dancing branch and—who was that young lady sitting in booby fashion with her fingers in her mouth? Oh yes, that's Helen Abbe. Well, she's the kindergarten adviser. Just as we were about to leave Paris, we received an invitation to visit a Paris dress shop which was under the careful regulation of Mollye Streight and Onece Jacoby. The delightful models were Edith Braker, Erma Ehram, and Dorothy Criswell, the lady with the blank expression. When we left the salon, we were rudely knocked down by a street cleaner, Don Donohue, who was proudly pushing his over-flowing cart down the street at a terrific speed, the graceless whelp! We decided that such carelessness on the part of the Paris XYZ workers should be reported. In the end, the shrewd judge, Fred Drafts, with his unreliable jury, Don Duhaime, Bill Chapman, Bob Butler, and Jack Dietle, decided to deduct fifty cents from Don's salary.

Because we'd been having such gorgeous luck until now, our luck suddenly changed. The Ebro River had overflowed, flooding the country for miles around. This didn't stop the Spaniards or any of the visiting Americans here at the time. We had no sooner arrived when a boat, shooting around a bend of rippling silver, overturned, throwing out a butcher, Carol Wandtke and his wares, sending them through the air to the rhythm of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." In return, the green grocer, LeRoy Herdman, with his boat-load of cabbage, picked up his semi-rival. Because of this condition of Northern Spain, we traveled toward the south. Soon we were met by an old gray-headed beggar, Charles Kapela, who begged us for some money for doughnuts and coffee. He said he couldn't afford to get out of "dunking" practice. When we had replenished his needs, he and his pals, Harry Holmes, Robert Hisey, Walter Gess, and Charles Rairdon devoured their results of charity, to the tune of "Sink me, I love it, I don't mind at all" with such fierceness and insanity of relish, that it was utterly amazing. A group of dancing señoritas, Helen Frass, Evelyn Flavell, Florence Fetzner, and Ruth Fellhauer, diverted our attention for a while. During a vaudeville show, we were entertained by the singing canaries, Dorothy Jordan and Ethel Law; the fleecy hay-seeds, Merl Garl, Charles Gaynor, and Eddie Papenfuse; the Gibraltar spinsters, Jeanette Pitzen, Phillis Dressler, Wanda Chester, and Doris Culbertson; and the chorus of Elizabethan beauties, Betty Radke, Betty Pfeifer, Betty Fall, and Betty Penske. Jim Hagedon, who was mercilessly thrown by a mad bull in the arena at Madrid, offered much pleasure. This great toreador was refereed by the fair but mighty Mary Carpenean. The peanut vendors of the stands were Ethel Buhrandt and Evelyn Frosch; pop distributors, Frances Kerentoff and Marion Knepper; and sellers of "Wear-ever Gum," Eleanore Steele, Helen Southard, Wilma Schweer, and Dorothy Rhinert.

Being close to Africa, we journeyed across for a brief visit. Some of the Amazon women, Dorothy Westgate, and Theresa VanCamp, welcomed us with an "ugh-ugh" part of their native language. We were greatly annoyed over the red-headed race which was running loose along the Gold Coast and which was traced back to Alma Walker. The missionaries, Virginia Weddle and Bill Baker, tried to civilize these natives, but with little success. Finally, leaving the "man-eating" district wherein Ed Bowes, Roland Zeman, and Ernest Woggons resided, and after interviewing Robert Hart, manager of the Tom Tom Co., we sailed for America.

Arriving in New York City, our last resort was the Grasser-Griffith Dance Hall. We were welcomed back by the Wallace and Beebe Troubadors. The head "sax" player, Bob Paschall, was selected because he had "poost" plus; the pianist, Dale Reed, being an abnormal, six-fingered person, was chosen for this reason, and Nelson Berkey was hired for his well-modulated voice. How well modulated it was, we won't say. The cigarette girls, Mildred Wilson, Betty Rudow, and Jane Wilson, wafted their supplies to the skies. The proprietor, Ralph Thrasher, and assistants, Glenn Hickey and Richard Cordell, were having a jolly old time with Harry Helmick and his wife, Dolores Thiesen. The blues singer of the evening, Helen Gunn, was massacred while singing her famous song, "Here Comes the British with a Bang-Bang." The murderess, Jane Blinn, had gone into "cahoots" with Norma Blaker, Naomi Benning, Zoe Barber, and Ruth Palm. Gertrude Bartkiewicz, the gypsy fortune teller, predicted the verdict to be given these unsightly criminals. The verdict was as predicted, "It was just the human thing to do." Realizing that our trip was over, our money spent, and our constitutions broken, we settled down to spend a peaceful life in the big town of Hicksville.

VALEDICTORY

Tonight some four hundred of us are bidding farewell to our days at Libbey. This leave-taking is not one which we regard lightly, for the memories of four years may not easily be set aside. Now these past many months seem all important to us, representing as they do such a large portion of our lives. In the future, which we are but facing, this period will become associated with those years in which we grew up.

Grew up! Those two words verily give us a start. Only four years ago we entered high school as children. Now we are approaching the road called "Experience," as untried young men and women.

We are untried but like Everyman in his lonely trip, we have been prepared for our journey by those who could not accompany us. Day in and day out, our teachers have been striving to give us the best mental and physical preparation possible. Strong minds in strong bodies have never been needed so much before as in this age of change and confusion.

No less necessary to our great success have been the aspirations created in us, and the ideals we have been encouraged to set up as our standards of right living. In these efforts, Mr. Williams, our principal, and Mr. Hunt, our class dean, have played an important part with the personal advice they gave to many of us and with their attempts to provide for us opportunities suitable to the work in hand.

Others who have given without stint of their energies are you, our parents. To you we give our thanks, for you will continue to be our guides in the trying years ahead of us.

We acknowledge that to repay any of you, our counselors, is impossible. The only privilege granted us is that of carrying the torch you have passed on to us, and making it richer and fuller because we have carried it by your instructions. Then only may we take our places and present the torch to posterity.

"Ice cream, soda water, ginger ale, pop; Juniors, Juniors, always on top!" chants a chorus of recent Sophomores, but now lofty Juniors. "We want Hoffman, we want Hoffman!" Applause, and Bill Hoffman, candidate for Junior Class President, climbs to a precarious position on a stone bench, and begins, "When I'm the president, when I'm the president, I'll outlaw ties and suit coats, when I'm the president." The students cheer madly, and the results of the election are Bill Hoffman, president; Claryene Fleming, vice-president; Mary Jo McGeary, secretary; Don Hemsoth, treasurer; Jack Hisson, sergeant-at-arms. These efficient officers guided the class safely through the turbulent year, with Mr. Cony, dean, always on deck with a helping hand. The annual J-Hop was the usual success, and enjoyed by everyone who attended it, thanks to the carefully laid plans of the committee. Talk about being chesty! There wasn't a Junior who could be touched with a ten-foot pole, the first few days after they got their rings. That was easily forgiven, though, when one saw the rings, for they were truly grand. That Ring Committee certainly knew what they were doing when they picked those out. So, the Juniors of today take one last fling, and are the Seniors of tomorrow, dignified, facing new problems squarely, and experiencing greater thrills. But never will they forget those *glorious Junior Days!

Drawn by Hugh Riffner,
a Freshman in Architectural Drawing.

RE-CREATING done while you wait and sleep. Apply at the old fishing hole or the boat dock. If either of these haunts are inaccessible, try the golf links, or the tennis courts; they may be more to your liking. When the frets and cares of the world rest heavy upon the soul, it's great to get out from under the load for a few glorious moments. Just try it. See if it doesn't improve your work.

Mr. Harry Stapleton

In the two years in which Mr. Stapleton has been Libbey's athletics director, he has accomplished a great deal and brought much of interest to the sports fans of the South Side because of his care in arranging programs. In the various city conferences, he has consistently and wisely promoted the interests of Libbey and is known among us for his loyalty and co-operative spirit.

Dr. Ladd and Dr. Young have contributed much to Libbey's fine-conditioned teams because they prepared the boys mentally as well as physically for coming games.

OUR SPORTS

At the head of the coaching staff comes Mr. Houser who has coached Libbey's football teams for ten years with excellent results. Mr. Glatke assisted in football and directed varsity coaching. Mr. Harding divides his duties between teaching backfield strategy to the football team and court tactics to the reserve basketball team. Mr. Lynn coaches the reserve football squad and the varsity new material. Mr. Jeffery has proved to be an excellent baseball coach. Mr. Everhart, our new track coach, has intensified interest in track at Libbey and has been assisted by Mr. Archambo.

FOOTBALL REVIEW

Captain Dick Vanderhoof

John Youngs and Ralph Weisenberg

Byron Harris

Throngs of people, young and old, each wearing the school's gay colors, hurry happily into the stadium. Eyes are bright and voices are thrilled with keen anticipation. All are eager, laughing and talking, with hopes of victory. Gay pennants wave as the spirited rooters become enthused. Yells! Cheers! Libbey comes on the field!

"There's my boy!" shouts a proud father, standing up.

"Sit down," cries a pretty girl student behind him. "I want to see my boy friend."

A shrill whistle blows and the teams go into action for the first game of 1934. Throughout the season Libbey won four, lost four, and tied two of their games, garnering a total of 112 points to their opponents' 78.

Although they were hampered by a new state ruling which prohibited spring training, Coach Houser, assisted by Coaches Harding and Glatke, developed a fine team. Dick Vanderhoof, our captain, was an excellent leader, and with Les Kelsey, our other star end, was honored with a place on the All-City Team.

In their first gridiron battle, Libbey downed Oak Harbor, 14-0. An intermittent rain kept many spectators away and made the field muddy and treacherous. In the first few minutes of play, Libbey pushed over a touchdown. After Kelsey recovered an Oak Harbor fumble, Reibe and Lawnczak smashed the line for good gains. Reibe then flipped the ball into Speas' arms for a touchdown. Hoffman, who added extra points consistently this season, kicked the extra point. A few minutes later the entire Libbey line broke through to block an Oak Harbor punt. After several gains by Reibe and Hoffman, Reibe again passed to Speas for the touchdown. Hoffman kicked the extra point. On the line, Weisenburg, Donohue, and Youngs were outstanding, while Speas, Reibe, and Lawnczak starred in the backfield.

Libbey swamped Maumee, a suburban team, 31-0. In the first quarter, Kelsey blocked a Maumee kick. Within four plays Libbey scored, with Severance taking the ball over and Hoffman adding the extra point. Severance again tallied later in the same quarter. Bruno accounted for two other touchdowns, and Bodell scored the final points on an off-tackle slant. Numerous substitutions were made by both teams with many of Libbey's second and third stringers playing. The most exciting play was West's thirty-five yard cut-back to Libbey's fifteen, but Maumee couldn't advance farther. Severance played well, with Bruno and Bodell giving their best performances of the season.

In our third game, we bucked up against Gary of Indiana, battling to a 7-7 tie. Gary lost no time in showing its power by opening up in the first quarter with long passes and runs, which enabled them to score in the first quarter. Cheered on by many rooters, Libbey came back fighting in the second period to tie the score. A series of passes and runs culminated in a touchdown when Reibe passed successfully to Kelsey.

Both teams kicked the extra point. Libbey was outweighed but fought hard to earn a tie and a moral victory.

John Gennings, Bob Reibe, Les Kelsey, Bill Speas

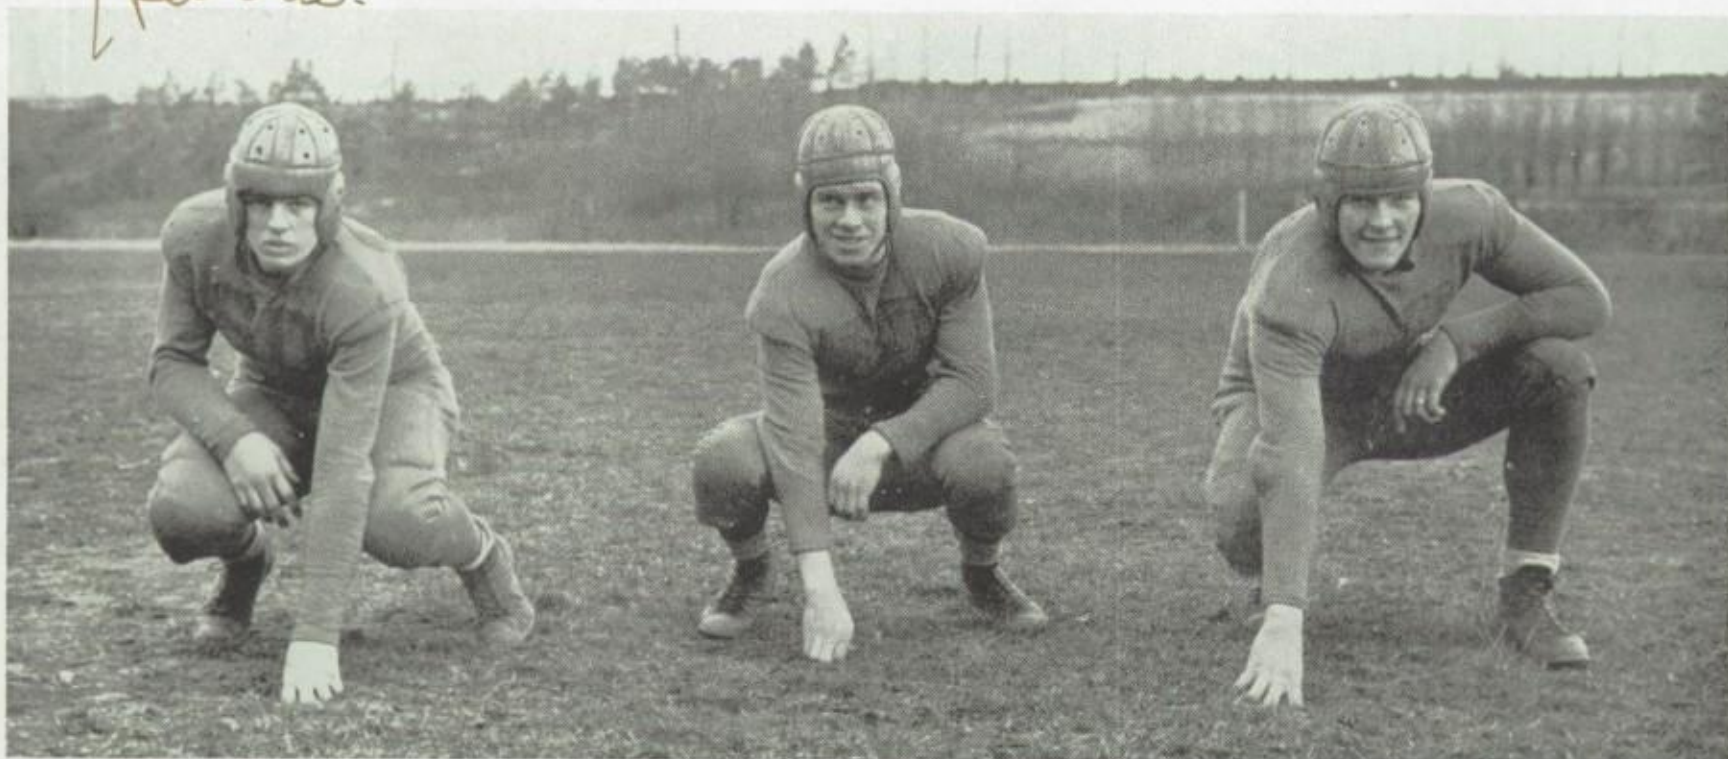

Libbey lost its first battle, an intra-city game, to the Central Irish, 12-2. Central had a fast, clever team with a deadly passing attack. Libbey stopped an early Central drive on the seven-yard line. The Cowboys' defense succeeded until the third quarter when Perz returned a Libbey punt for a touchdown. Although Libbey ripped their way to the Central fifteen, they were unable to score. The Cowboys gained their two points after Central was forced to fall on the ball behind their own goal for a safety. Central recovered a Libbey fumble and ultimately scored their second touchdown, but failed to make the point. Bohrer and Harris stopped many Central advances with their yeoman work.

Akron, N. Y., came to Libbey with the intention of avenging last year's defeat, but failed, after giving the Cowboys a scare in the first quarter. In the first five minutes of play, they scored two touchdowns by long passes. Libbey braced and prevented the Indians from further scoring. Libbey went wild in the last three quarters, piling up forty points to win with ease. Speas and Lawnczak each tallied two touchdowns. Hoffman and Severance also scored. Hoffman started the big drive, smashing Akron's line for big gains. His fine play revitalized our dispirited team which then started their scoring spree.

In their second intra-city game Libbey defeated Scott, their historic rival, 13-0, in their twelfth annual battle. Libbey's first touchdown came by virtue of a blocked Scott punt in the first five minutes of play. After two line plays failed, Severance passed to Kelsey for the touchdown. The extra point was tallied in the same way. The second score was made in the third quarter after Kelsey blocked Brown's punt. Scott lost their lone chance to score in the first quarter, failing to gain after a long pass was successfully completed to the Libbey ten. Kelsey and Vanderhoof were the stars as they hurried Scott's punters consistently.

In their next game, Libbey met Steubenville, one of the strongest teams in the state. Although favored to beat Libbey by a larger score, the Reds just managed to eke out a 6-0 victory. Steubenville, after a scoreless first quarter, made their touchdown with the aid of some passes. Libbey broke loose in the third quarter with a barrage of passes, but failed to score. Frequent fumbles hampered our offense. With a little more luck, Libbey would have given Steubenville their first defeat. Kerstetter and Gongwer, our heavy tackles, stopped many line plunges.

Bob Kerstetter, Bill Hoffman, Warren Gongwer

A close battle was staged between Libbey and Woodward with neither team able to score, although both teams threatened. Both teams lost opportunities in the first half after blocking punts. In the first play, Kelly broke through to block Speas' kick with Nickpor recovering on the Libbey eighteen. Libbey held for downs, and immediately punted out of danger when they received the ball. Donohue, who played a fine game, blocked a Woodward punt in the second quarter. Kelsey, ever-alert, recovered the ball on the Woodward twenty. The team was only able to gain eights in their four downs and Woodward gained possession of the ball as the half ended. Late in the game Libbey with its fine defense, stopped several Woodward drives, both within the ten-yard line. In the matter of first downs, Woodward took the honors with eight, while Libbey took three. Weisenberg and Gennings turned in fine performances for our colors. The entire line co-operated as one.

Our Cowboys didn't have a chance with Waite, the city champions. The final score was 28 to 0. Waite's deadly blocking swept our plucky players out of the way to give their backfield large holes. Passes and long runs provided most of the scoring. In the second quarter, Kelsey blocked Snider's punt and recovered on Waite's eleven-yard line. Phil MacThena led Waite's scoring with ten points. Snider, Hamer, and Cousino also scored. MacThena dropped on a Waite fumble which rolled over the Libbey goal, made two points after touchdown and tackled Speas behind his own goal for a safety. Snider ran seventy-five yards to score, while Hamer and Cousino made touchdowns on the receiving end of passes. Libbey went to DeVilbiss to play their annual Thanksgiving game. Although they were defeated, Libbey put up a great fight and lost only by the slight margin of 13-6. The first period was a scoreless affair. Each team seemed to be feeling the other out and finding just what could be done. During the entire period, the ball didn't go behind either team's thirty-yard stripe. The next period, the DeVilbiss Tigers got their first score. After two vain attempts to gain through the line, Solek dropped back and passed to Maker who was dropped on Libbey's five. Martin then passed to Patterson for the touchdown. Our Cowboys took eighteen plays to push the ball from the thirty-four-yard line to the goal line. Bill Hoffman and Reibe made several gains. A penalty on DeVilbiss and a short pass from Speas to Hoffman, advanced the ball into DeVilbiss territory. In five more plays, the ball was pushed to the two-yard. Lawnczak hit the line for the only Libbey score. Donohue intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter, but Libbey had one of its passes intercepted a few minutes later. DeVilbiss lost ground in two plays, but on the third down, Martin dropped back to heave a pass to Solek that accounted for the second Tiger touchdown. Solek place-kicked the extra point to complete the scoring. Speas' punting gave Libbey an advantage, but the Tigers' rushing and passing game was too strong.

Many of the boys such as Bodell, Bohrer, Severance, and Hoffman, contributed much this year and will form the nucleus of next year's squad. Gongwer and Kerstetter will add weight and experience to the line.

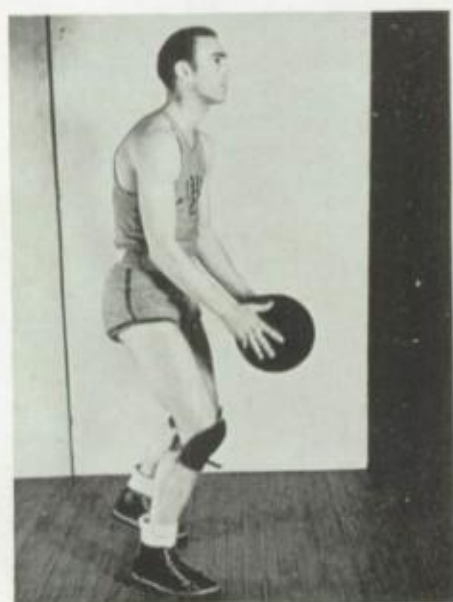

The Reserves will give to the Varsity a large group of boys, who, under Mr. Lynn's tutelage, have had a successful season and have received valuable seasoning and experience which will aid them tremendously on the Varsity. This system has always proved to be a success and Libbey looks forward with high hopes for an excellent team.

The gallery is hushed as onlookers watch the referee. He blows the whistle and two rangy centers spring from the floor, fighting desperately to get the ball. Yells and whistles! Libbey gets the tip-off!

Libbey started another season with a squad of fighting, although inexperienced, players. The Cowboys distinguished themselves by topping Walbridge, 18 to 13. Jachimiak led the scoring, totaling five points, and Weisenberg came next with four points. Libbey led at the half, 10 to 6, and held their lead the second half to win. Hoffman, Jachimiak, and Captain Wiesenberg were outstanding on our team.

Our quintet suffered defeat at the hands of Rossford, 10 to 32. Rossford had the advantages in every way and led at the half, 18 to 6. Rossford had a tight defense and Libbey was rushed on every shot. Schmidt sent two from the floor to lead Libbey's scoring. Lasonsky led Rossford's scoring with twelve points. The Cowboys barely took the Alumni, the final score being 26 to 24. Our Varsity was leading 14 to 5 at the half, but had to come from behind to win in the fourth quarter. Donohue, Hoffman, and Jachimiak each scored six points. Libbey put up a fine battle before going down in defeat in their first intra-city battle with Scott. The final score was 20 to 25, with Schmidt leading the Libbey scorers with six points. We were behind all the way and were unable to win because of Scott's uncanny shooting in the last quarter.

Waite defeated Libbey, 36 to 15, in their first encounter. Libbey was unable to find the basket and seven of their fifteen points were made by Hemsoth and Jachimiak. Our unlucky Cowboys, because of their inexperience, failed to win an intra-city game. They lost to Woodward 39 to 14. At the half, they were in the van, 21 to 9, and Woodward's air-tight defense kept Libbey in check the remainder of the game. In their first game with Central, Libbey barely lost 36 to 37. Until the closing minutes of the game, Libbey led 36 to 24, but Central staged a rally to win. Corbett made thirteen points for Central, while Schmidt and Hoffman scored twelve and eleven points respectively for Libbey. The Blue and Gold then lost to DeVilbiss with Schmidt and Donohue leading our scoring. Schmidt had nine points to lead Libbey, and Rae topped DeVilbiss' players with eleven. Libbey lost to Scott, 28 to 33, with DeBord of the Scotters shattering all Libbey hopes by scoring seventeen points. The team then lost a second game to DeVilbiss by the hopeless score of 12 to 36, and our second game to Waite, 34 to 37. In this latter game Schmidt tallied ten points for Libbey. We lost our ninth consecutive game to St. Johns, 28 to 31, but only after St. Johns made a last minute rally, scoring two field goals in rapid succession. Our last two intra-city games went to Central, 41 to 26; and to Woodward, 23 to 30.

In the sectional tournament our basketballers played Whitmer, a suburban team, and were defeated 17 to 23.

The Reserves have long been the shock troops for the future Varsities and this year's squad promises to send up some excellent material. These fellows will have to fight in order to get on the team, for Schmidt, Hemsoth, Hoffman, Waldock, Osten, Jachimiak, and Pinniger of this year's Varsity will be back. These fine prospects point to another championship to be brought back to Libbey in the coming season.

In the spring, the thoughts of Libbey fellows turn toward golf, and this is only natural for Libbey's most brilliant athletic record was made by the golf team this year. The lure of the greens and fairways was so irresistible that many lads tried out for the team. Captained by smiling Tony Rudzinski, the team included Jack Holloway, Dal Hall, Henry Sobieszczanski, Edwin Nowakowski, Ted Rudzinski, Alphonse Jachimiak, and Norm Holloway. All their opponents were helpless against the steady play of Tony Rudzinski, the long drives of Jack Holloway, and the uncanny putting of Dallas Hall. Although Libbey played every city high school and had a hard schedule, they won every game by very wide margins. The squad, which was under the tutelage of Coach Art Glatke, went to the State Tournament, where they increased Libbey's renown by placing third. The team has made an enviable record with its city championship and its showing in the state finals. We hope that the many fine players returning next year will eclipse previous records and win new laurels.

The batter is tense as he waits for the pitch. The pitcher toes in and swiftly throws the ball. "Strike three!" shouts the ump as the batter takes a terrific swing at the ball and misses. Libbey has another victory to their credit! Early in the spring Coach Jeffery assembled a large group of boys who practiced in the gym until the weather permitted them to play on the diamond. From these aspirants, the coach formed a hard-hitting team. The outstanding players, George Boehk, a slugging outfielder; "Whitie" Vorderburg, the short-stop; and Howard Siek, first baseman, brought credit to Libbey. Libbey was fortunate to acquire at the beginning of the year, a skilful track coach, Bill Everhart. The team progressed fast and by late fall Libbey had a fine cross-country team. Chet Kapela, the team captain, placed in the District Cross Country Meet. In their first indoor meet, Libbey was defeated by Scott, the city champions, but defeated DeVilbiss and Woodward in their following meets. Libbey has the material to continue on to greater success.

INTRAMURALS

Intramurals! How much they mean to Libbey lads. Often these activities are the only recreational pleasures that they can obtain. These sports and games also provide the exercise which is so important to keep us in a good mental and physical condition. This inter-class competition gives each boy a fair and equal chance to participate in volley-ball, basketball, shuffleboard, and other minor games. Mr. Al Jeffery, who has promoted intramurals extensively at Libbey, arranged many tournaments, volley ball and basketball being the most popular. They boys received valuable hints from Mr. Jeffery on how to train and be efficient in athletic contests. Of course, the boys eagerly responded when given a chance to organize volley ball teams. Volley ball requires a keen eye, besides perfect co-ordination of nerves and muscles.

This is readily shown in the regular procedure of the game. Standing in his back court, one player serves the volley ball over the net. The opposing team then has to return the ball, having three chances to hit it without permitting it to drop to the floor. A player cannot hit it twice in succession. The serving team continues until their serve fails and the other team obtains their chance to serve. Necessitating good team work rather than the play of individuals, volley ball is beneficial in training the boys to play for pleasure and enjoyment rather than glory.

(Top left) Deftly throwing the ball out of reach, but within bounds, is a trick hard to learn, but well worthwhile. (Top right) These boys may not have much "pull", but oh, what a "push"! (Bottom left) What's the matter? Has Meyer got you cornered? (Bottom right) Watch this serve closely; it's coming swiftly and suddenly.

(Left) What next, boys? Will it be a hammer-lock, a half-Nelson, or a toe-hold? Hope no broken bones will be the result. (Right) Oh, those wicked upper cuts and jabs! Just remember, my lads, this is only a friendly bout, not a life-and-death struggle. Besides, broken noses have never been known to please the girl friends.

During the past season the interest in this exciting sport was higher than usual. There was much rivalry, and many hard battles were staged over the net. As soon as volley ball competition came to a close, basketball teams were organized. The intense interest of the boys was so great that it was necessary to have two leagues of eight teams each. These teams met each week with numerous spectators watching the action with attentive interest. The season finished with the Forum out in front, having won eight games without a single loss. The Q. D's. were the runners-up in this Club League, winning seven games and dropping one, that to the Forum team. In the other league, the Ohio State team was at the top with five victories and one defeat. In second place in the league was the Wisconsin Quintet by virtue of four wins and one loss. Besides playing in these major games, the boys gathered in the small gym where they learned and practised the rudiments of boxing and wrestling. Shuffleboard, which is a comparatively novel game at Libbey, was taught and explained to the lads who signed up readily when given this opportunity.

In April, table-tennis teams were formed consisting of two players on each team. This game requires a limber wrist, and loud were the roars when one of the players missed the little celluloid ball. The annual checker tournament will again be managed by Meyer Pertcheck. This tournament has had an increasing number of contestants and this year's list outnumbers all others.

Intramurals contribute material to Libbey's athletic teams and give boys of all classes many pleasant hours.

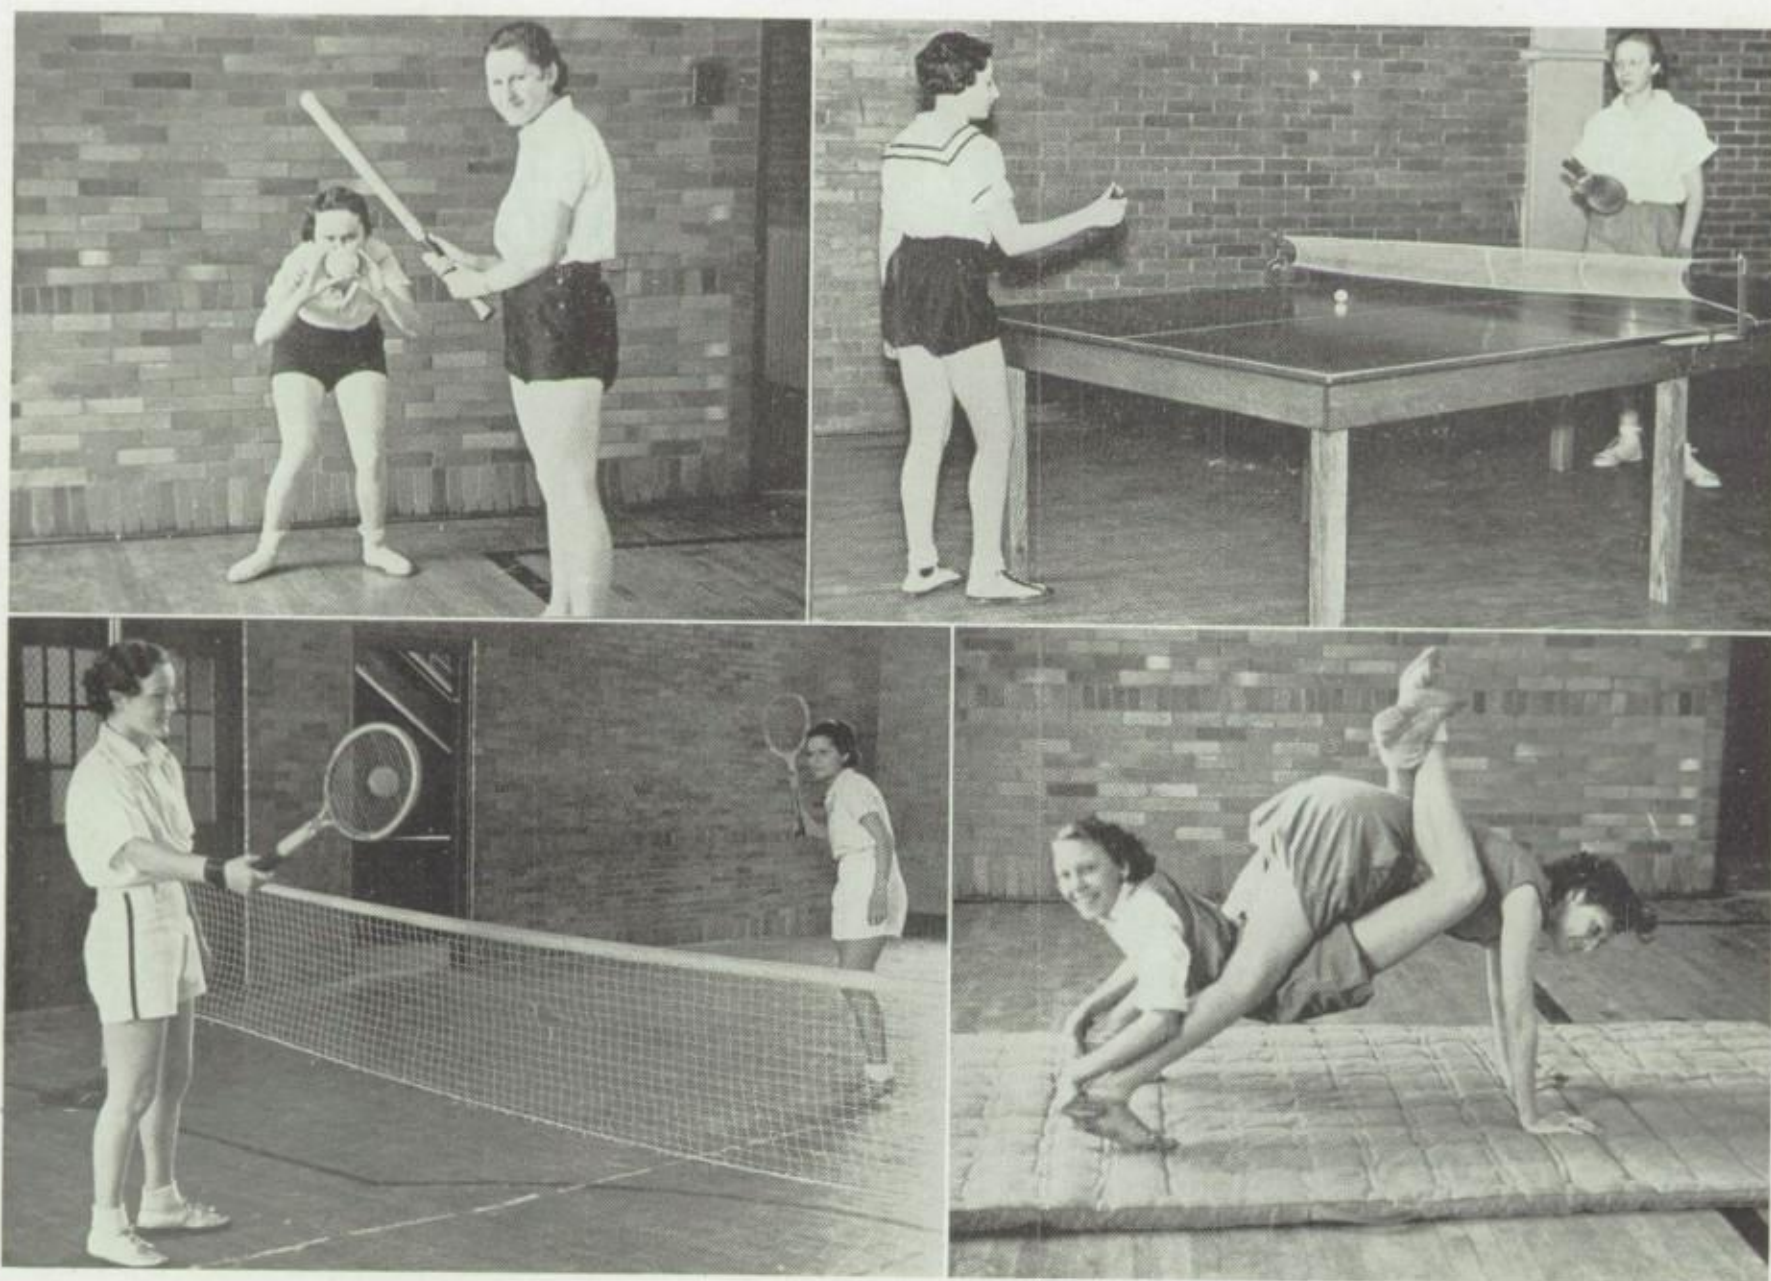

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

In the past, the place of women has been in the home; but many changes have taken place in the last few years. The greatest change has been the advent of girls into athletics. Such famous feminine athletes, as Helen Wills Moody, Eleanor Holm, and Babe Didrikson, have shown to the world the benefits and good results of indulging in sports.

The increasing number each year of the girls who participate in these athletics at Libbey has proved their success. The variety of games has trained and developed physical well-being as well as the charm of the participants. Volleyball and basketball have taught them the advantages of quick thinking and keen judgment. Dancing and tumbling have developed co-ordination of muscles and self-assurance. Table tennis has developed quick perception and has provided exercise.

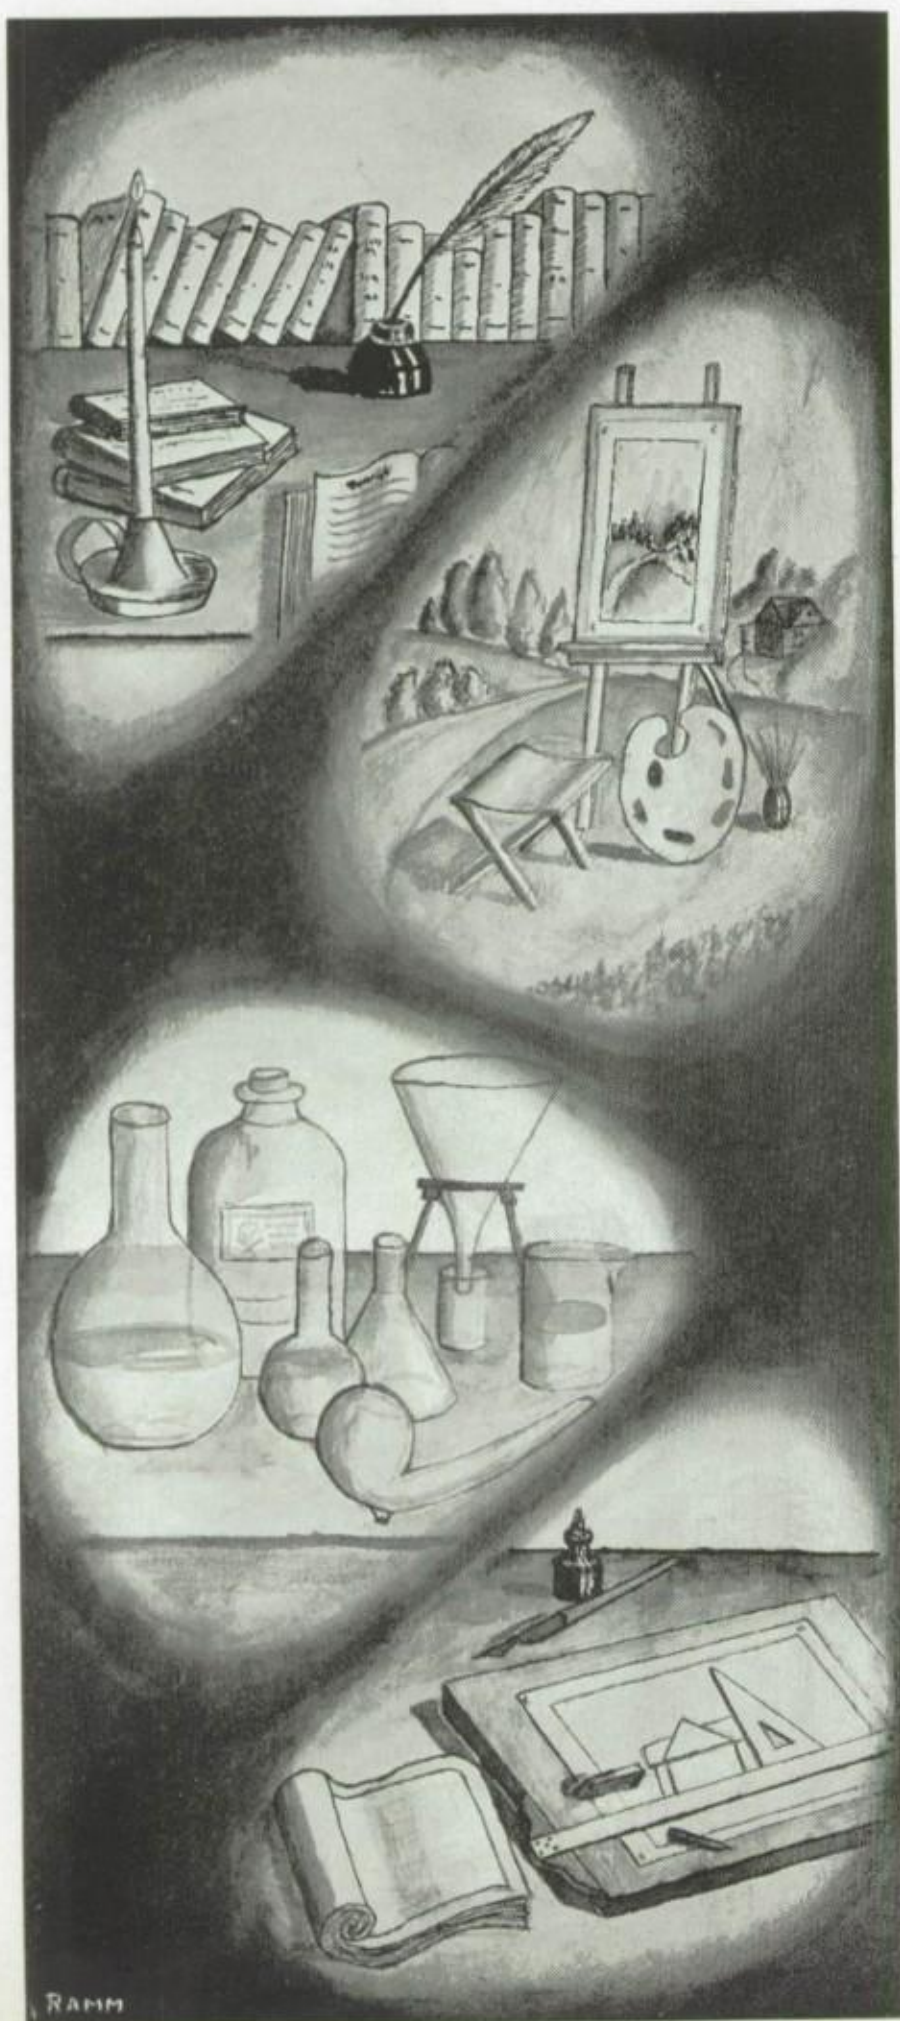

Numerous tournaments were arranged by the instructors, Mrs. Mohrhardt and Miss Bowman, and soon created such intense rivalry that many of the girls became proficient at their particular sport because of frequent practice. During these tournaments the gym was the scene of excitement and enthusiasm that only vivacious girls can make. This athletic program is one of the most important factors in our educational system because of the recreational enjoyment it affords as well as promoting health. These girls whom we point out in our halls, are perfect examples of grace and poise and will leave Libbey well equipped in health and endurance.

THE opposite of tedious work is recreation, which takes a multitude of forms. For the chemist, art may be a fascinating hobby, while the artist turns to nature for his. Thus, that which is work to one, is enjoyment for his neighbor. Whatever your hobby may be, encouragement in its pursuance can be enhanced by the company of like-minded friends, whose participation in your play adds zest to living.

This year our annual consisted of two departments, the editorial and the business, with members of the architectural drawing classes furnishing the art work. Wisely counseling us whenever his help was needed, our principal, Mr. Williams, shared our interest and enthusiasm in this publication. Miss Dusha guided us in the planning and preparation of the dummy, copy, and engravings. Mr. Dipman and Miss Payne directed the snap-shots and Mr. Stapleton cared for the finances and circulation.

The capable editor-in-chief, Dorothea Thiem, was assisted by Irmgard Luetke, associate editor; Mollye Streight and Martha Lok, seniors; Betty Haskins, classes; Virginia Lingle, faculty; Frances Czolgosz, clubs; Jack Ransome, athletics; Vivian Zander, snap-shots; Phillis Dressler, typist. Norman Sass, Frank Martin, who designed the cover, Stanley Sobolewski, Winston Broome, Wanda Chester, Margaret Guyant, Jeanne Michealis, Dorothy Pratt, Dorothy Schultz, Mary Jo McGeary, Venietta Lingle, Evelyn Swantack, Jean Brown, Bob Schmeltz, and John Retzke were assistants in this department.

CRYSTAL

What day is anxiously awaited above all others? It is the day upon which our Crystal is issued. "Read all the news, gossip, and scandal! Learn all about your friends and teachers!" announce the bulletins second hour, and then the Crystal is delivered.

The main purpose of this publication is to give the student body an accurate account of school news, and to enliven, with its humor, all who read it. The work of compiling the news affords the students practice in writing and also improves their self-confidence and poise by personal interviews with famous Toledoans, and visiting celebrities.

The Crystal advisers are Principal Harold E. Williams and Miss Gerdes, with Dorothy Zapf as editor-in-chief, Virginia McLaughlin as associate editor, and Venice Wagoner in charge of exchange. Reporters are Ursula Brausieck, Jean Cameron, Doris Culbertson, Isabel Fye, Virginia Gerwin, Helen Gunn, Jane Perry, Hazel Sundling, Janet Thom, Eileen Verdon, Margaret Faist, Dallas Hall, Alfred Thalman, Vernon Tilley, Don Glessner, Mary Deming, Norman Holloway, Dorothy Janas, Jane Kansorka, Norman Nagel, Virginia Noonan, Nancy Turner, Betty Schmidt, Florine Moscher, Betty Moser, Marie TenBroek, and Ben Durfee.

Among the social activities of the Crystal staff this year were a party for Miss Mary Hutchison, former Libbey teacher, and a tea for the Press Association at which a very interesting talk was given by Grove Patterson, Editor of the Toledo Blade.

LIBBEY NATIONAL

What an honor and a joy it is for a senior to be elected a member of the National Honor Society! Even more exalted can the chosen few feel who are admitted as juniors, when they must be in the upper fifteen percent of their class; the seniors are elected from the upper third. Almost every high school has a chapter of this organization in order to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire for service, to promote leadership, and to develop character in the students of the school. The members inducted last year as juniors elected their officers the early part of this season. Those who achieved these prominent positions were Albert Kelley, president; June Hankenhof, vice-president; Jean Cameron, secretary-treasurer. Holding such important offices didn't turn their heads a bit, and they successfully conducted the business of the society, thus displaying their qualities of leadership, and their willingness to serve. The example that these students have given in their versatile capacities, has been a source of inspiration to the underclassmen who are carefully planning their work with honors in mind.

HONOR SOCIETY

Under the direction of the advisers, Principal Harold E. Williams and Mr. Eugene Hunt, the society contributed its share to the successful continuance of the arrangements for the election of the Senior and Junior Class officers, such as preparing the petitions and ballots, making use of the preferential ballot for the first time. The system was highly praised for its fairness, even though it was much more complicated. The members also aided in correcting the reading tests of the underclassmen.

Knowing of the honors and privileges connected with membership in this society, you can imagine with what a thrill those lucky students heard their names read by Mr. Williams in a mass meeting held during the early part of March and with what pride they took their places with the other members in the front of the auditorium. Albert Kelley welcomed the new members into the society, administered the oath, and introduced the other speakers, Dorothie Gysin and June Hankenhof, who explained the significance of the club insignia, a keystone with a flaming torch and the letters L S S C ; standing for Leadership, Scholarship, Service, and Character, inscribed upon it. So, attention you underclassmen! Take heed, and study to make yourselves eligible for membership to this society.

FRIENDLY-Y'S

Echoing the tone of the "Y" of which they are a branch, the Friendship and Hi-Y societies make a praiseworthy attempt to build up and enrich the spirit, mind, and body of their members. To do this, inspiring devotional periods were arranged in connection with each meeting. These were followed by the regular programs, consisting of talks by club members, alumni, prominent Toledoans, or other outside speakers. Demonstrating their unselfishness, these groups often invited the entire school to hear a particularly interesting speaker they had procured. Besides that, they conducted religious services at Christmas and Easter, and took part in city-wide "Y" projects.

"All work and no play make Willie a bad boy," believe the Friendship and Hi-Y members. To prevent this, many parties were arranged, at the "Y," the school, and out-of-doors, providing the needed diversion. Even in play they didn't forget others, and the girls gave parties for the orphans throughout the year. The aim of these clubs, to bring out the good in their members, has had a most beneficial effect upon the entire school.

A group of girls dressed in unique brown smocks, trimmed with white collars and cuffs, was walking down the corridor one day close to Commencement time. They were Senior Friendship girls, discussing events which had happened during the course of the year.

"Every Friendship girl," they were saying, "will remember the fun of the Christmas party we had with the Hi-Y. We entertained a group of orphans at the Miami Children's Home and had a skating party at the Y. W. C. A. with a pot-luck dinner following. Distributing Christmas baskets, presenting a Christmas pageant, and selling colors during the football season were great fun also, and we'd like to do these things all over again."

Through the activities of this club, its members have been given an insight into social service work and have become better acquainted with each other, thereby proving the name of the club. Miss Gertrude Paine, the adviser, has helped the girls in attaining their plans and was assisted by June Hankenhoff, president; Mary Comer, vice-president; Janet Thom, secretary; and Caroline Gomer, treasurer.

"To find and give the best," the purpose of Junior Friendship girls, may be only six words, but means a lot, as one may see by the charitable and social functions of this society.

During the past year, baskets were sent to poor families both at Thanksgiving and Christmas. Each member "adopted" an orphan to whom she has sent letters and gifts, and a party was given for these children in March. At the carnival, the girls helped by making and selling home-made candy. Social good times were not omitted, for the girls had two parties with the Hi-Y, and one party given for them by the Hi-Y. In March, the first Co-ed Ball at Libbey, to which every girl, pupil or teacher, was invited, proved to be a great success. Also, a delightful tea was held in the spring for the mothers.

The able cabinet consisted of Jean Furman, president; Nancy Turner, vice-president; Margaret Guyant, secretary; Dorothy Schultz, treasurer; Dorothy Loe, chaplain, and Doris Flavell, sergeant-at-arms. The ever-willing advisers were Miss Maud Brown and Mrs. Frances Valentine.

"To face life squarely: find and give the best" is the motto of the Sophomore Friendship Club. Through their many activities during the year, these girls have accomplished a great deal for themselves and others. Both at Christmas and Thanksgiving, they filled baskets for the needy families and, during the Christmas season, they gave a party for the orphans at the Children's Home, at which time they presented their "adopted orphans" with presents. Besides their charitable activities, they also had a skating party at the Y. W. C. A. Another time they gave a tea to which the cabinet members of all the Friendship Clubs in Toledo were invited.

This organization is headed by Ruth Powlesland as president; Nancy Neal, vice-president; Jean Moore, secretary; Ruth Lorenz, treasurer; Marjorie Retzke, chaplain; and Loreen Taylor, sergeant-at-arms. The able adviser, Miss Emily Kontz, has contributed equally to the success of the organization by donating her valuable services and giving advice at the most crucial moments.

SENIOR HI-Y

A club devoted to the molding of the character of a boy is of wonderful value to a school, especially when it is under the guidance of men of rich experience. The advisers of the Senior Hi-Y are Principal Harold E. Williams and Mr. Arthur Glatke, who have given generously of their time to make the activities of the club worth while. Working under their direction this past year were the officers: Norman Baker, president; Lloyd Tucker and Carol Wandtke, vice-presidents; Ray Loehrke, secretary; and Bill Fox, treasurer.

A new ritual for the initiation ceremonies, written by Mr. Williams, inspired the new members with the seriousness of their responsibilities as Hi-Y boys. Programs, including talks by Mr. Roger Conant, Mr. Roscoe Baker, and Mr. Robert French, were enjoyed. Socially the club found pleasure in an after-school dance, a roast at the "Y" cabin and skating parties with the Senior Friendship Club. The annual Mothers and Sons Banquet and the Vocational banquet completed the year's experience of this group of boys who represent the finest ideals of Libbey.

JUNIOR HI-Y

With the juniors and sophmores combined in their Hi-Y activities this year, our club's purpose: to create, extend, and maintain a high standard of Christian character throughout the school and community, has been well maintained. Inspirational talks given by our advisers, Principal Harold E. Williams and Mr. Charles Martin, and by prominent people outside of school circles greatly benefited all of us. Of great interest and value was the questionnaire devised by Mr. Williams to show each boy his outstanding merits and his weaknesses in order that he might try to better himself.

Our social activities, consisting of a dance, a roast, a skating party, a Christmas party, and a trick show at the Carnival, showed the ability of the committees in charge to plan and direct activities. The same trait was well demonstrated by the officers: Robert Horn, president; Don Ehlenfeldt, vice-president; Douglas Thierwechter, secretary; Ted Kirkby, treasurer and Warren Gongwer, sergeant-at-arms.

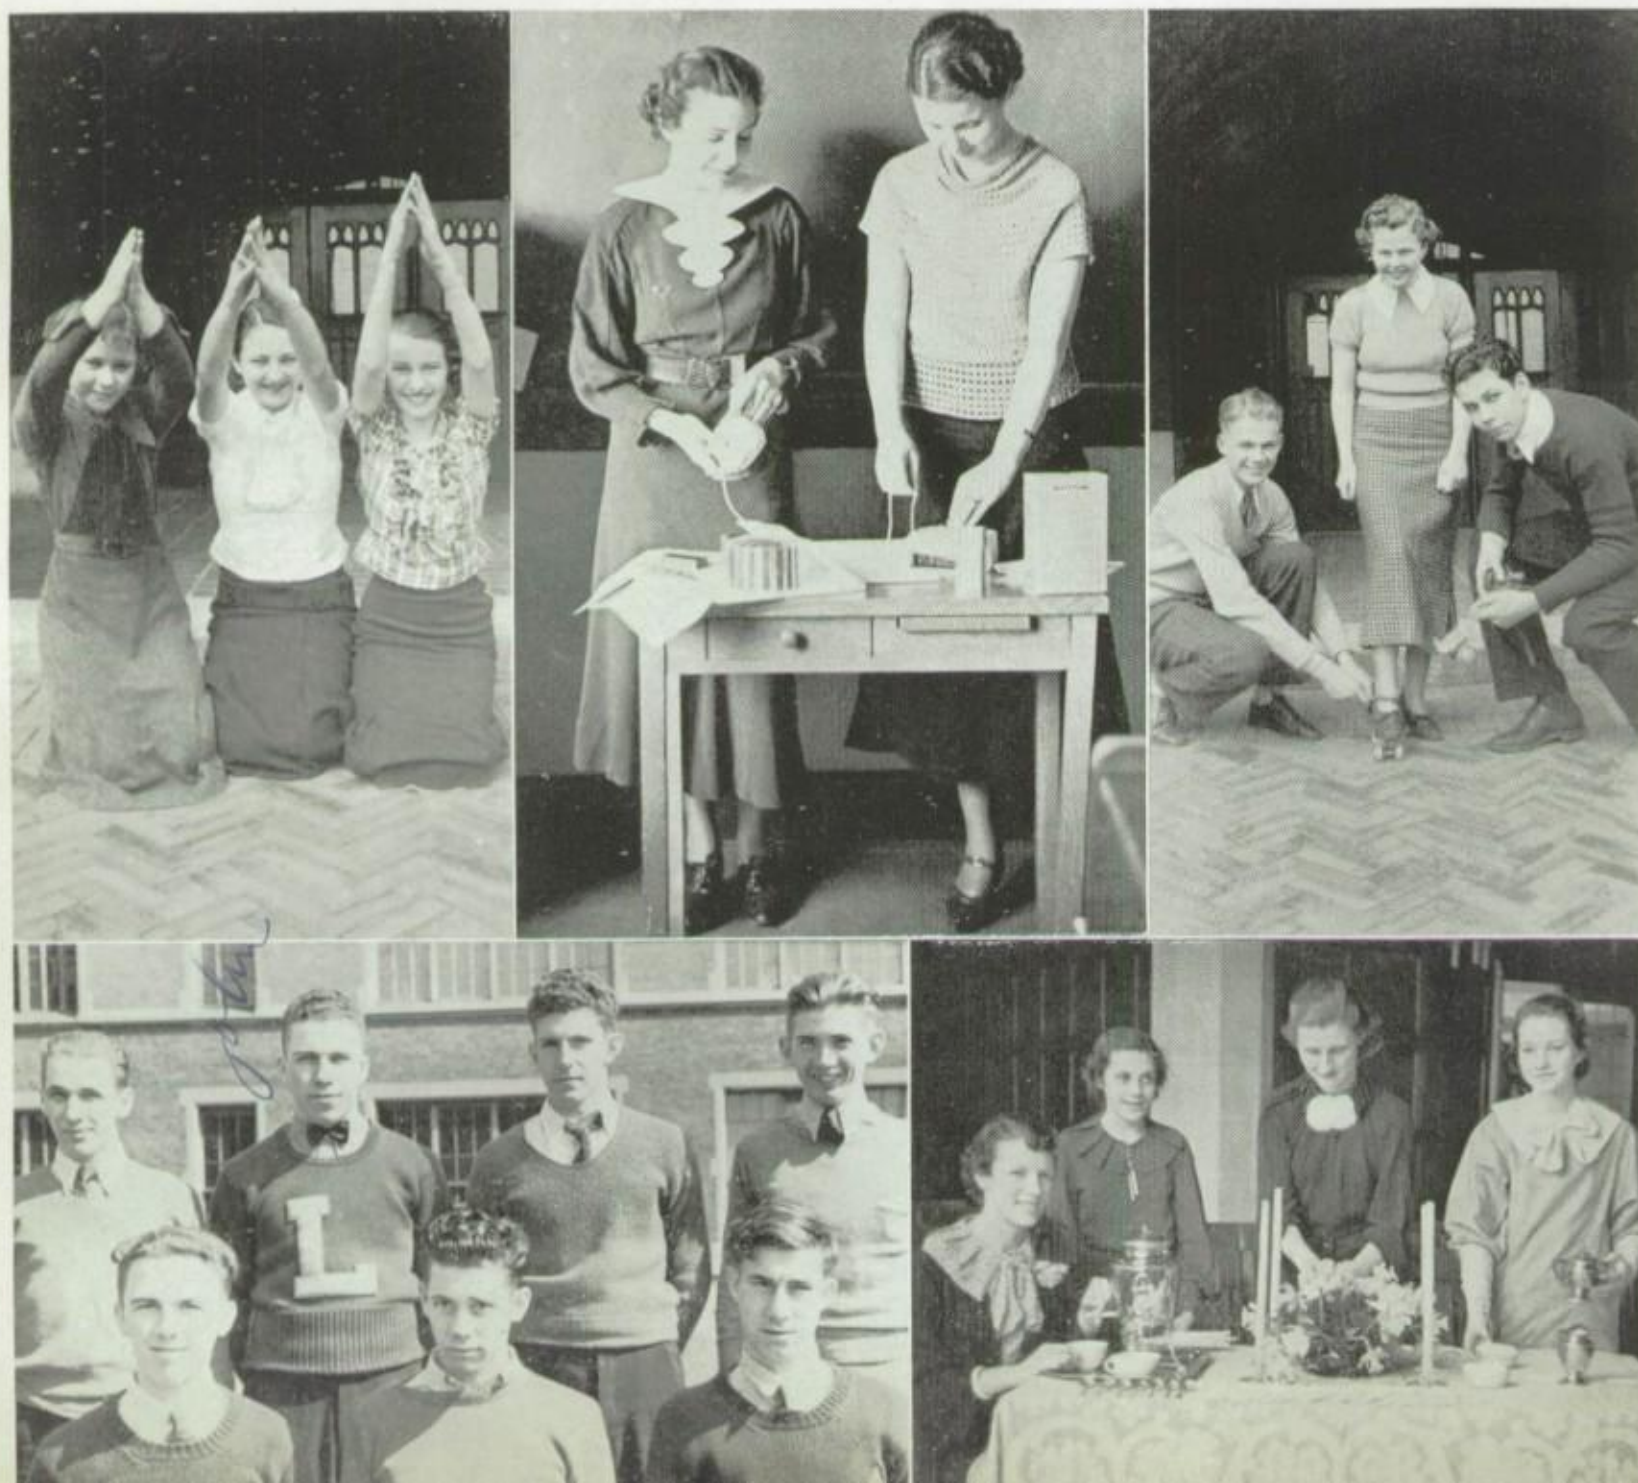

These, as well as all the members of the Junior Hi-Y, profited greatly by the help of their advisers who were always helpful and generous in every way possible.

THE LITS

Proudly bearing banners on which are inscribed such noble mottoes as "Second to none," "Literature is the garden of wisdom," and "Nothing without work," the literary societies of Libbey prove they believe that "whatever is worth doing, is worth doing well." As a practical example of this, there have been during the year teas, card parties, and competitive sports, carnival ideas cleverly and distinctively worked out, and gala dances, sponsored by them to help add color and joy to the school's activities.

Although the social side of these groups has been very stimulating, they have never lost sight of the aims for which they were organized. Following their purpose, to create an appreciation for good literature, to awaken an interest in writing, and to develop personality, the officers and advisers of each literary society planned a series of meetings studying the lives and works of famous authors. Oral themes also played an important part. The true value of these clubs lies in the experience the members have received in learning to assert themselves, and yet at the same time co-operate with others.

THE PERIES

They all have that "clubby" air about them. Even Miss Ruth Dusha, club adviser, has that Peri look. The officers are equally capable and charming, including Martha Lok, president; Florence Fetzer, vice-president; Mary Deming, recording secretary; Dollie Kleinhans, corresponding secretary; Harriet Hayes, treasurer; Betty Haskins, censor; Helen Gunn, chaplain; and Virginia Honberger, sergeant-at-arms.

The programs, under the supervision of Betty Haskins, were unusual and extremely well given. Reviews of well-known plays and biographies of favorite movie stars proved interesting and beneficial to everyone.

Of course, the Peries are socially inclined. The Peri Prom, an annual activity, was held at Calumet Hall. The committee worked hard and the decorations were novel. At the carnival, they took over the Bake Sale, assisted by the pledges. For the first time in Periclean history, a card party was sponsored and held in the school cafeteria. The social year was concluded with the banquet at which the seniors were given the traditional Peri lockets.

THE PHILS

To prove that the Phils do have literary tastes, literature was introduced into all of their programs. In addition to this, a literary tea was given, wherein the usual biographies given in their programs were also carried out. These very interesting reviews were carried on perfectly under the supervision of the president, Isabel Fye, who, in turn, was aided by Dorothe Gysin, vice-president; Mollye Streight, corresponding secretary; Jane Wilson, recording secretary; Dorothy Zapf, treasurer; Mildred Wilson and Virginia Duncan, censors; Jane Blinn, chaplain; and Miss Voorheis and Miss Gerdes, advisers.

A true Libbey organization, the Phils bent all of their efforts toward making money at their grocery store. The biggest event of their social year was the Phil-Forum "Snow Flurry." Among the varied and many other events, including a roast on a cool autumn evening, and combined splash parties with the other girls' "lits", everyone felt satisfied with the whirl of events which had been planned and enjoyed. A farewell banquet ended the year's activities, and the Seniors left Libbey feeling quite sure that fun and education had been combined satisfactorily.

THE FORUM

By sponsoring, together with the Phils, the Phil-Forum "Snow Flurry," the Forum launched its usual social and literary program for 1934-35. The committee, headed by Lloyd Tucker and assisted by Ralph Oldiges, Ted Kirkby, and Elmer Senerius, labored incessantly with the Phil committee to put the dance over and make it the success that it was. Throughout the year, the society prospered under the guidance of Mr. Hotchkiss and Mr. Everhart and under the leadership of its staff of officers: Dick Vanderhoof, president; Barney Gardner, vice-president; Fred Drafts, secretary; Don Hemsoth, treasurer; and Bill Hoffman, sergeant-at-arms.

The Forum also did its part in making the Carnival a success by sponsoring the "hot-dog" stands. Their banquet, which was held at the end of the year, was pleasant and well attended. In the field of sports, the Forum won the intramural basketball championship. Thus, the Forum fulfilled its purpose: to increase the social and literary understanding of its members, emphasizing primarily the opportunity of its members to hear as speakers men who offered vocational and character guidance.

THE ZETS

"Nihil sine labore," the Zet motto which means "Nothing without work," was practiced throughout the year. The members were eagerly interested during each program, based upon the theme, "The World is a Stage," which Dorothy Janas and Marjorie Knieriem, censors, helped to arrange. The first social event was a roast in charge of Faylene Atwater. The pledges had a premonition that something would happen when the rush party was planned by Betty Manthey, Virginia Segar and their committee. The pledges were compensated afterwards with delicacies. The annual dance, "The Prisoner's Ball" held in March in the Calumet Temple, was made enjoyable through the efforts of Rita Reinlein, chairman, Lenore Sprunk, Floy Moll, Jane Dunkle and Mary Heltzel. Miss DeLisle, Miss Henderson, and Mrs. Browar, the advisers of the club, helped the girls to success. Onece Jacoby, president, was assisted by Rita Reinlein, vice-president; Wanda Chester, recording secretary; Jane Lewis, corresponding secretary, Eliza Love, treasurer; and Helen Frass, chaplain. Dorothy Janas planned the banquet. Jerry Chase, chairman, Betty Roudebush, and Janet Cordell decided upon senior gifts.

THE Q-D'S

You all know that the success of a club depends on the amount of time and effort spent on it by its members and advisers. This is especially true of the Q. D's. who have made an honest effort to live up to the name of being a literary club by having interesting talks and debates at every meeting. The advisers, Mr. R. F. Cony and Mr. R. E. Baker, have greatly aided the club in carrying on their work. The president, John Gennings, has been assisted by a very willing cabinet, composed of Al Britton, vice-president; Evan Price, secretary; Carl Heer, treasurer; and Pat Densman, sergeant-at-arms.

Besides promoting an interest in literature, the club may be proud of its many social activities which were fun for all. The Q. D. Shindig, which proved to be a gala event of the school year, had at its head, Bill Speas, who was assisted by Byron Harris, Jim Hagedon, Ralph Weisenberg, and Jack Hissong. Among other events in which the Q. D's. participated were a roast, banquet, picnic, and initiation of new members, the last event being unusually well enjoyed, especially by the pledges.

FINE ARTS

"Express yourself!" is the cry of the artist. "Develop your personality!" echoes back the musician. "Be original," demands the architect. "Show your individuality," reverberates the linguist. Thus students in these clubs learn important lessons which are necessary to success in the world. Any of these studies may be made into a profession as well as a hobby, and still provide many interesting hours of work. Playing together at parties, roasts, and dances, the members learn how best to get along with their fellow students. They form lasting friendships, and experience never-to-be-forgotten delights. By giving operettas and concerts, by entering contests, and having exhibits, they obtain the joy of having accomplished something worthy of praise, and are incited to strive to attain even greater heights. As a part of their training, they also take field trips to places of special interest to them, or hear many accomplished persons who are successful in some particular line, give addresses at the club meetings. So the days spent in work and play speed swiftly on, while those invited into these clubs learn some of the activities that change the theory of learning to the practice of living.

GLEE CLUB

"Music hath charm"—who doesn't know the end of that quotation? The Glee Club not only has charming music, but a definite purpose behind it, that purpose being to create interest in singing and acting among the many students who are in the club. Under the management of Mr. Ball, this year the group presented a lovely operetta, "The Belle of Bagdad." Betty Fall and Irwin Kiel took the leading parts in this truly outstanding accomplishment.

But all the time in Glee Club is not spent singing, for Mr. Ball feels that the students should have a background for their music; therefore, he tells them about the Romantic and Classical periods of music, comparing the two periods, the different composers, and the kinds of music.

At the annual May Festival, held in the Scott Stadium, the Glee Club presented a choral arrangement of "Il Trovatore," which was sung before Jessica Dragonette, who was visiting Toledo for this affair. The year's officers were Ralph Ringle, president; Gloria Baird, vice-president; Virginia Weddle, secretary; Paul Weaver, treasurer; Carl Fasnaugh, property manager; Evelyn Wise, sergeant-at-arms; and Charles Benner and Kathleen Smith, publicity managers.

ORCHESTRA «» BAND

To teach students to love the best in music and to improve their musical ability are the purposes of the Libbey band and orchestra. Fine annual concerts were given by both of these organizations. One of the outstanding objectives of the orchestra was to participate in the May Festival. Besides the annual recital, the band has played at all the football games.

Mr. Guy V. Sutphen, an accomplished musician, and the officers, Norman Baker, president; Dick Cordell, vice-president; Virginia Finch, secretary-treasurer; Fred Wolkins, business manager; Bob Horn, student manager; Frances Kerentoff, advertising manager; and Anna Marie Brand, librarian, have given much of their time to the promotion of the band.

A great share of the orchestra's success was due to Miss Bessie Werum, leader and conductor, and to the officers: Clemens Ignasiak, president; Grace Ormsby, vice-president; Anna Marie Brand, secretary; Don Mercer, treasurer; Irwin Kiel, business manager; Robert Baum, assistant manager; Joyce Robertson, Jane Wilson, and Lula Baum, librarians.

ARCHITECTURAL «» UTAMARA

Both the Architectural and Utamara Clubs are striving for beauty as their one goal. The Architectural Club is interested in beauty in homes and buildings, while the Utamara Club teaches appreciation of beauty in fine arts.

Naomi Benning, president of the Utamara Club, has as her officers: Dolores Thiesen, vice-president; Dorothy Pratt, secretary; and Jack Graham, treasurer. Miss Hazel Bartley is their adviser.

The able heads of the Architectural Club are Gerald Snyder, president; Elmer Senerius, vice-president; Robert Klippstein, secretary; Norman Nagel, treasurer; and Frank Martin, sergeant-at-arms. Mr. Packer is their helpful adviser.

To fully enjoy life and its environments, we must have an appreciation of art. Through the master architects and draftsmen, the sculptors and painters, we should be able to gain this height. These two clubs are aiding us in this achievement.

LATIN « » GERMAN

Because of the many new fields in history and literature which a foreign language throws open to its students, the value of such study is invaluable. Latin gives us an insight into Roman history and culture and broadens our knowledge of English and Romance languages. French, Spanish and German also have their value. French is recognized as the language one should know on the continent, German is the language of medicine and Spanish is widely used in South America and Havana.

The Latin Honor Society, capably advised by Mrs. Burton, has studied ancient Rome through readings and recitations, and find its work made more enjoyable because of a large collection of historical models. Officers are Virginia McLaughlin, president; Alice Rohrbacher, vice-president; Robert Horn, secretary-treasurer.

The German club, following the expert advice of Miss Alma Lok, its adviser, has rapidly acquired a knowledge of Germany, with its many picturesque castles, ancient waterways, and softly prismatic sunsets, under the leadership of Ursula Brausieck, president; Bob Hart and Al Dreps, vice-presidents; Anita Miller, secretary; and Helen Brownmiller, treasurer. The club sponsored a Kaffee Kutchen, for the exhibition, where one could obtain an invigorating cup of coffee.

FRENCH « » SPANISH

The activities of the French club have been watched with interest throughout the year. They sponsored a dance, and the play which they presented with the Spanish club during the carnival was both interesting and unique. Christmas baskets were arranged under the supervision of Miss Krueger, its adviser, and its officers, Virginia Gerwin, president; Jean Caylor, vice-president; Charles Robb, secretary, and Earlene Baker, treasurer. We'll take our hats off to these models of efficiency who conducted the meetings entirely in French. There they combined education and pleasure. What could be more fun than working cross-word puzzles and telling jokes in French? As far as the members are concerned, nothing.

Miss Russell and Miss Coehrs have assumed the pleasant duty of advising the Spanish club. Many reports have been given by its members describing the eccentric customs of its natives, the peculiarity of its geographical conditions, and the splendor of its ancient civilization. One of the most pleasant of all their social activities was the initiation party and roast. The club members have corresponded with Spanish students since last May. The officers were Betty Radke, president; John Glanzman, vice-president; Jack Hissong, treasurer; and Jack Ransome, secretary.

HOBBY-ISTS

Promoting an interest in biology, chemistry, aviation, home economics, and commercial subjects, this group of clubs has provided a variety of hobbies for their members. Stamp collecting, a fascinating and popular pastime to today, comes under the heading of commerce; insect, bird, and flower collections, under biology; experimenting, and many initiation pranks, under chemistry; building model airplanes, under aviation; and sewing or cooking, under home economics. As hobbies often prove useful as well as entertaining, these clubs have done their bit toward making the world a better place in which to live by giving the students some practical experience in the different fields which the societies represent.

The social life and development of the members has also been carefully considered, and as a result, many roasts, after-school dances, and parties were planned both by and for these groups. At times, the whole student body was asked to participate in some of their activities, and a good time was certain to be had by all.

BIOLOGY CLUB

There are very few of you who have not wondered, at some time or other, why particular things were true of nature. Thus the purpose of the Biology Club is to increase interest in the observation of life about us and offer solutions, whenever possible, to these mysteries. Our advisers, Miss Fiedler and Mr. Rusie, have endeavored to be ready at all times to solve any puzzle of ours, and have aided in preparing programs in which outside speakers have contributed to make the club meetings a very delightful forty-five minutes and something to look forward to. Miss Brown and Mrs. Valentine gave enlightening talks on "The work of the Field Naturalists," and Mr. Pershing spoke on "Hunting."

Mary Kreft and Calvin Cummings were sent as delegates to the Zoological Society banquet. A picnic at Ottawa Park to which the alumane were invited, rounded out the social activities. The club held the spotlight this year at the Carnival with their Pitch-a-Penny!

The year's officers were: president, Eileen Verdon; vice-president, Jane Harris; secretary, Mary Frances Ohlman; treasurer, Mary Kreft; and sergeant-at-arms, Calvin Cummings.

ALCHEMIST «» HOME ECONOMICS

The Home Economics and the Alchemist Clubs both have, as the central theme of their organizations, an interesting and helpful hobby. The members of the Home Economics are studying the characteristics and attributes of the all-American girl; while the Alchemists are, of course, interested in the mystery of chemistry. Planning roasts may primarily concern the former, but they are also enjoyed by the chemists. In both these groups interesting talks were given by outside speakers and club members.

Betty Pfeiffer, president of the Home Economics Club, has as her capable assistants: vice-president, Marion Knepper; secretary, Dorothy Griswold; treasurer, Ruth Fellhauer, and reporter, Mary Jo McGeary. Miss Ruth Lloyd, Miss Isla Owen, and Miss Helen Wylie are the advisors.

The advice of Mr. Vossler, adviser of the Alchemists, is always welcomed by the president and officers: president, Gordon MacDonald; vice-president, Virginia Seger; secretary, Jean Cameron; treasurer, Albert Kelly, and sergeant-at-arms, Bob Randall.

COMMERCIAL « » ACTIVITIES

For the business problems of the school, the Commercial Club is the theory, and our Activities Department represents the practice. Through the year the Commercial Club has had speakers to help its members formulate business ideas and reports have helped to carry out its purpose of helping all commercial students. To become better acquainted with the work of this group, an introduction to the officers will help. Richard Knopp is president; Gwendolyn Kirschgesner, vice-president; Jeanne Porter, recording secretary; Ruth Swartz, corresponding secretary; Leslie Black, treasurer; Edward Bowes, sergeant-at-arms.

The Activities Department is divided into four groups: Activities with Jane Dunkle, Dorothy Hanselman, Betty Radke, and Bettie Riddle; Clubs, Thelma Dorn; Publicity and Advertising, Howard Grasser and Tom Durbin; Mimeographing, Onece Jacoby, Margaret Nixon, Jeanne Porter, Velma Eberts, and Verdine Lewis. Mr. Stapleton and Mr. Martin are in charge. This group prints tickets, takes care of advertising, and directs the publicity for many social activities.

GIRLS ATHLETIC

Excitement? Just take a look in the gym some afternoon when the Girls Athletic Association is busy. Each girl is enjoying herself by taking part in one or more of the activities offered. Some you will see playing ping pong, others deck tennis, some shuffle board, and others volley ball. All about there is an atmosphere of activity and enjoyment.

The three major intramural sports are basketball, volley ball, and indoor baseball. The "Speeds" defeated the "Lucky Thirteen" of which Loreen Taylor was captain, in a very interesting conference hour game. There was also a very exciting and close ping pong tournament held during April.

This club sought during the year to increase the interest of the girls in athletics, also to preserve and improve their health, through exercising and health cards, and too, to see that everyone enjoyed herself. All those who received the highest numbers of points according to their merit system received a letter. Points were given for athletics, health, leadership, school grades, clubs, offices held, and each person on a winning intramural team received merits. Under their capable advisers: Mrs. Mohrhardt and Miss Bowman, who was new at Libbey this year, and their officers: Virginia Petrecca, president; Janet Cordell, vice-president; Edna Schlagheck, secretary; and Elaine Taylor, treasurer, they have succeeded very well.

The letter girls from last year organized the "L" club. This club meets every Monday and during their meetings, they enjoy planning and playing games. They directed the athletic programs for the monthly meeting, social functions, and also sponsored the dart-throwing contest at the Carnival this year.

The social functions were many and very much enjoyed. The girls were entertained by the Scott "S" girls and the Waite "W" clubs, at splash parties held in both Scott and Waite swimming pools. Our club in return gave an after-school party for the letter clubs of the other high schools. In March a delightful tea was given in the Library for the mothers. The members have enjoyed many hikes, roasts, and a roller skating party at Memorial Hall. It was the first skating party of the year and was a success.

The society hopes the girls next year can and will carry on where they have left off.

AVIATION

Have you ever noticed a peculiar odor about the school? If you have it was probably the day after the Aviation Club's initiation. Limburger cheese, garlic, and slimy oysters make a good mixture, but do not entrance the olfactory senses. However, the many pledges who were taken into the groups this year devoted themselves to the serious and delightful business of studying aircraft, and are looking forward to the day when attired in natty uniforms and seated as pilots in large planes with silver wings stretching far out to the right, and to the left, they will be conquerors of the air. This is not just a foolish dream for aviation has increased greatly in importance and is still in its infancy. Besides mail and passenger service, many valuable commercial and medicinal cargoes are being swiftly transported across the nation. These boys have entered into a large, progressing field and we wish them success during the years to come. Mr. Dipman, with the assistance of the talks given by the club members, explained the many and varied questions that are so interesting to the future aviators. Albert Nirschl, president; Bob Parker, vice-president; Charles Gaynor, secretary; and Norman Burris, treasurer, were the officers. Mr. Dipman and Mr. Sterling were advisers.

FLOCKS OF FUN

As the earth needs the sun, so Libbey needs Dolly Kleinhans' luminous locks.

Did you ever wash the products of your artistic ability off lockers the night of a Friendship-Hi-Y party, Bob Butler?

"An orchid to Barney Gardner for his heroism." Walter Winchell.

Like Israel of old, Libbey too has a prophet, Irmgard Luetke.

Noise of many waters describes Weisenburg.

Where did Venetta Lingle get that cute southern accent?

Any information on reducing is available from Betty Berkebile.

The Lawyer Wilentz of Libbey is Martin Courtney.

What makes Dick Cordell think he can sing?

Ask Mary Ruth Comer about the dancing contest at the Peri Prom.

Our own Grove Patterson, Dorothy Zapf.

Just ask Norman Baker, "Who's president of the Senior Hi-Y?"

Cars make building permits profitable, don't they, Betty Fall?

Some nominations to Hollywood: John Gennings and Don Donohue, Don Juans; Isabel Fye and Mollye Streight, heroines; John Saxton and By Gardner, heroes; Bill Fox and Jack Dietle, villains.

What's more lonesome than a couple of boys at a Co-eds' Party?

ELECTRICITY CLUB

If one were to list all the modern mechanical appliances in use either in a factory or in a home, he could scarcely find one which is not linked up in some way with electricity. The development of the practical use of electricity opens up a wide field, some phases of which the members of the Electricity Club are attempting to understand. The various entertaining programs presented to the club in the course of the year, have all been offered for the purpose of carrying out the purpose of the club, to create a greater interest in electricity among the boys. During the year, the club visited a number of places which were of interest to them. Among these were the Police and Fire Alarm building and Radio Station WSPD.

The group was guided along the path of success by its adviser, Mr. Plough, and the boys are confident that they could find no more satisfactory set of officers than that composed of Fred Willard, president; Jack Dittman, vice-president; Stanley Radziewicz, secretary; Elwyn Buehrer, treasurer; and Ray Heitzel, sergeant-at-arms.

AND MORE FUN

Shadows: Lloyd Tucker to Florence Fetzer; the Q. D.'s to Mr. Cony; Pat Densman to Betty Haskins; Bob Bowes to Jo McGeary.

Did you ever hear of T. B., Russell?

What Vergil did for Rome, Charles Robb did for the Senior Class.

Similies: as original as Wanda Chester's sneeze; as bashful as Alma Walker; as uncontrollable as Mary Lou Darr's laughter; as large as Virginia Petrecca's eyes; as indispensable as Mary Kreft is to the Biology Club.

A typical movie queen is Betty Rudow.

Did you ever waltz home from the Y.W.C.A., Charlotte Gomer?

In a nutshell: Dick Hilton, diplomat; Bettie Riddle, glass of champagne; Bob Schmeltz, Speed Robinson; Virginia Weddle, Sally Rand.

Ask Alfred Thalman how Joe Pickl looks in a sailor suit.

Why do they call a certain Hi-Y president and member of the ring committee "bugle-nose"?

"How to Get Through High School in Ten Easy Years," by Mike Burke, is just off the press.

Impossibilities: Mary Deming without By Harris; Betty Parker studying during conference; John Retzke and Bob Horn behaving in Miss Heder-son's fifth hour class.

Ever see Lenore Sprunk without chewing gum?

OUR SONG WRITER

For as many years as Libbey has existed Mrs. Paine has been our constant and loyal friend, adding, by her interest, encouragement, and enthusiasm, to our enjoyment of the various activities of the school. Because of her talent in music she has given us pleasure at assemblies on numerous occasions and this year presented us with a new musical composition, a stirring march, of which we are very proud.
